Urges Tax On Big Incomes For Unemployment Relief

HOOVER PLAN CRITICISED BY DEMOCRAT

Bourbons Advised By Sen. Walsh to Bring Its Own Program For Job Relief

ASKS FOR SHOWDOWN

Says President's Message Is Abdication of Leadership, In Speech Today

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, today condemned administration unemployment relief proposals and called on the Democratic party to accept the mandate of the November 4 election by bringing in its own program of relief. He urged additional taxes on big incomes to finance a thorough relief project.

"We are not longer a minority party in this country," Walsh shouted.

"The president's message is an abdication of leadership."

Turning to the Democratic side, Walsh urged, "Let us present a program and have a roll call and let your opponents reject it."

"But let us at least," Walsh continued, "but the Republican party on record as to what it intends to do."

Assailing the administration program because at most it could relieve only laborers, mechanics and artisans, Walsh demanded relief for "the so called white collar class will get little help from these proposals."

"Soup kitchens and free beds have their places as stop gaps," he continued, "but what the unemployed want it not a dole. They want an opportunity to work."

President Hoover's relief program is just a drop in the bucket. Persons in high places have grossly underestimated the number of the unemployed," he said.

"Those who have incomes of $50,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000 a year have got to meet the expenses of this emergency. I call on these men with their fortunes for increased taxes."

The second week of the short session of congress began today with interest centered in the senate consideration of relief for drought sufferers, a part of President

FAMED PADRE OF RAINS VERY LOW

SANTA CLARA UNIVERSITY, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The condition of the Rev. Father Jerome Ricard, California's famed "Padre of the Rains," was "very low" today.

Bedridden for nearly a year with a serious heart ailment, the noted priest-meteorologist suffered a relapse yesterday and passed a series of crises during the night, each of which, physicians said, left him weaker.

The Rev. Father Ricard's "sun-spot" weather predictions, originated years ago, gained him world wide notice.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Police Called To Halt Football Game

Police were called out to stop a football game here yesterday.

It wasn't a Notre Dame-U. S. C. affair, but a gang of neighborhood kids near Fifteenth and Bush streets. Police didn't object to the game particularly, but the boys were painting lines on the street to represent the football field.

The "kids" were lectured, their paint taken away from them, and were sent to a vacant lot for their game.

RUSSIAN WAR PLOTTERS GET PRISON TERMS

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The death sentences imposed yesterday on five Russian technicians, accused of plotting with foreign powers for a war of intervention on Russia, were commuted today by the zik—central executive committee of the soviet union—equivalent to the parliament of other countries.

The death sentences were commuted to ten years' imprisonment. The three other accused men, who had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, were given a commutation to five years' imprisonment.

In extending clemency, the zik said the proletarian state does not desire revenge on beaten and disarmed enemies.

The commutations brought to an end one of the strangest cases in modern political history, in which the eight defendants damned themselves unreservedly, confessing to an extensive plot to sabotage the industrial and economic progress of soviet Russia and deliver her into the hands of foreign powers. England and France were accused by the defendants of having plotted to bring about an outside war against Russia.

The proceedings were broadcast by radio to millions of Russian listeners and were spread in detail through the press. Mass meetings were held all over the country, and an insistent public clamor was created for the execution of the eight men.

TELLS DELEGATES NATIONAL ANIMOSITIES ARE REVIVING

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Old animosities are reviving and war prophets are getting more and more precise in dating the next war, Dr. Herbert H. Gowen of Seattle told members of the Institute of International Relations at its opening session here.

The institute, made up of delegates representing universities west of the Rocky mountains and members of organizations interested in promoting world peace, will continue until next Friday night. Dr. Rufus B. Von Klein Smid is president.

Dr. Gowen, who is professor of Oriental studies at the University of Washington, outlined four suggestions as a basis for insuring peace. These were:

The repudiation of a mechanistic conception of the universe.

The elimination of old prejudices such as the "howling provincialism" of many modern patriotics.

A belief in the friendliness of the universe.

Self-alignment mentally and spiritually with worth while effort.

Dr. Gustav A. Werner, College of the Pacific, delivered an address today on "Political Experiments in Central and South America." Problems of reciprocal trade and relations with Mexico also were discussed.

NEWSPAPER SURVEY REVEALS SENTIMENT OVERWHELMINGLY FAVORABLE TO WORLD COURT

Summary of the survey of daily newspapers in the United States on the question of their stand relative to the World Court protocols which are to be transmitted to the Senate in the near future, was announced today by the American Foundation, of New York. It shows that 1357 daily newspapers, including The Register, with a circulation of 26,993,906, favor ratification, while only 265 papers, with a circulation of 10,557,317, are opposed.

In the survey a total of 2036 daily newspapers were quizzed to obtain the editorial stand of the nation's reflectors of public opinion. Out of the entire number, which represented a circulation of 41,097,042, there were 58 papers with a circulation of 549,177 which reported no stand taken, 14 papers with a circulation of 432,242 whose answers were impossible to classify, and 342 papers with a circulation of 2,564,042, making no reply.

In only three political divisions in the nation was there any near resemblance of a close contest in the number of papers as favoring and opposed to ratification. These were the District of Columbia, where there were two papers endorsing and three opposed, Utah, where there were four in favor and three opposed, and Idaho, where six papers favored ratification and four opposed. In nine states, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wyoming, there was no newspaper opposition at all recorded as a result of the survey.

The picture in California, where there are 158 daily newspapers published, shows that 105 papers joined the Register for a total of 106 expressing a favorable attitude toward ratification. The chart showing these totals include all of the largest papers in the state with the exception of the five Hearst papers, and represent a circulation of 1,268,477. Those opposed, including the Hearst papers, number 34 with a circulation of 1,069,291. There were four papers in the state with a circulation of 11,977, which took no stand, and 14 papers whose circulation was 61,341, made no reply.

The poll by states on those favoring or opposed was as follows, with the first figure representing the number of papers favorable to ratification, the second figure, those opposed, and the third figure the number of dailies in the state: Alabama—11, 2; Arizona—10, 2; Arkansas—27, 0; 33; California—106, 34, 158; Colorado—22, 1, 23; Connecticut—25, 0, 32; Delaware—3, 0, 3; District of Columbia—2, 3, 5; Georgia—30, 4, 41; Illinois—20, 1, 26; Idaho—6, 4, 16; Indiana—56, 24, 122; Iowa—34, 8, 45; Kansas—33, 7, 54; Kentucky—24, 1, 25; Louisiana—10, 6, 16; Maine—9, 0, 11; Maryland—10, 1, 14; Massachusetts—48, 9, 72; Michigan—43, 6, 64; Minnesota—20, 4, 24; Mississippi—13, 0, 15; Missouri—41, 5, 61; Montana—11, 4, 19; Nebraska—12, 7, 23; Nevada—5, 2, 9; New Hampshire—7, 2, 9; New Jersey—32, 5, 40; New Mexico—5, 1, 10; New York—115, 20, 148; North Carolina—31, 1, 36; North Dakota—7, 2, 10; Ohio—80, 13, 134; Oklahoma—36, 4, 55; Oregon—10, 4, 26; Pennsylvania—106, 24, 158; Rhode Island—9, 0, 10; South Carolina—12, 1, 15; South Dakota—12, 1, 15; Tennessee—19, 1, 23; Texas—78, 8, 112; Utah—4, 3, 7; Vermont—7, 2, 9; Virginia—23, 0, 29; Washington—23, 8, 35; West Virginia—23, 4, 31; Wisconsin—34, 9, 45; Wyoming—4, 0, 6.

JUDGE LINDSEY DENIES GUILT OF MISCONDUCT

Appears In Court After His Eviction From New York Church

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Former Judge Ben Lindsey pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct today when he was arraigned in west side court in connection with his eviction yesterday from the cathedral of St. John the Divine.

His hearing was set for 2 p. m. Friday, after Lindsey explained to Magistrate Dwyer, that he had engagements—one in Reading, Pa. today, and another in Hartford, Conn. on Thursday.

Lindsey's arraignment was made on a complaint filed by Detective William May. The charge was brought after the former judge, attending services in the cathedral, interrupted Bishop William T. Manning and demanded an opportunity to reply to the charges the bishop had made in his sermon.

Manning's sermon was a criticism of Lindsey's advocacy of companionate marriage. The former judge was hurried from the cathedral by detectives after he mounted a table and demanded five minutes time in which to reply to Manning.

Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for Lindsey, said Manning would be one of the witnesses subpoenaed for the hearing Friday. Lindsey also announced he would consult with Hays and Samuel Untermyer, prominent attorney, to determine whether there was any basis for a libel suit for a large sum against Manning.

After a week of strong verbal exchanges, which began with the bishop's unsuccessful protest against a speech Lindsey made to a group of clergymen, the two men faced each other before a large congregation in the church yesterday. Bishop Manning had announced he would speak about announced he would speak about Lindsey, and the jurist had intimated he might challenge the churchman.

As Manning closed his sermon assailing the companionate marriage theories, and was intoning the ascription, Lindsey leaped to an oak table directly below the pulpit, raised his arms in a denunciatory gesture and shouted: "Bishop Manning, you have done me an injustice. I demand five minutes to answer your lies. This is not a house of God but a house of injustice."

Before he could continue, several ushers and detectives rushed forward, dragged him from the table amid wild confusion, hustled him outside. He was taken to a district police station and served with a formal summons charging disorderly conduct. No bond was required and he was thus able to keep a lecture engagement in Albany. He returned from Albany to answer the summons this morning.

EXTORTION CHARGE LODGED AGAINST SON

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(UP)—With his 80-year-old mother as the complaining witness, Frank Biffer, 43, was to be returned here today from San Francisco to face investigation into asserted attempts at extortion.

Biffer, police claim, plotted with Elmer Floyd to extort money from individuals by telephone threats. Mrs. Biffer was the recipient of a threat against her daughter which demanded $200 to save her.

Trailed by police after Mrs. Biffer reported the incident, Floyd was arrested and held for investigation. Police said Floyd admitted his complicity in the plot, and named Biffer as his co-conspirator. Biffer was captured in San Francisco.

Wiser, his daughter, Catherine, and Miss Conrad, his niece, were in front of the Wiser home last night when the three bandits held them up, ordered Miss Wiser into her house and kidnapped the attorney and Miss Conrad.

During a short ride, the bandits robbed Wiser of $4 and Miss Conrad of $5. Neither knew of any other motive than robbery for the kidnapping.

WILL C. WOOD CLOSES BANK IN HOLLYWOOD

Action Follows Run Which Began Several Days Ago

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The Bank of Hollywood, which handles the accounts of scores of film stars, was ordered closed today by Will C. Wood, state banking commissioner.

An angry crowd gathered in front of the bank, situated at Hollywood and Vine streets, in the heart of Hollywood, as the notice of the closing was posted.

The statement, signed by Wood, read:

"In accordance with section 136 of the bank act of the state of California I have taken possession of the bank and property of the Bank of Hollywood."

It was learned that a run started on the bank several days ago. A number of prominent film figures withdrew accounts Saturday.

The bank was ordered closed for a period of seven days during which it will be given the opportunity to work out its financing problems. G. R. Dexter, president, announced.

Dexter declared the "timidity of depositors in these stressing times started a slight run on the bank."

Although all checks presented at the bank Saturday were honored, they were not sent to the clearing house, Dexter said, because that organization as well preferred to wait stabilization of the bank.

"We have had plans under way for some time to build up our surplus, and we are confident that we can straighten matters out during the course of the week," Dexter said.

Officers of the bank conferred over the week-end and decided not to open this morning, and Superintendent Wood agreed that we should close temporarily.

"As to our assets being frozen—I don't think we are any worse off than other banks of the country. Of course, if we can't complete our financing plan within a week, we'll just have to close our doors."

SEA STRUGGLE DESCRIBED BY RESCUED GROUP

Destroyer Brings Rescued Party Into San Diego

By DUANE HENNESSY
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN DIEGO, Dec. 8.—The battle of a skiff load of men and women to keep from being swept out to sea while the yacht Eola, which they had abandoned, battered itself to pieces against the rocky shore of Guadalupe Island, was told today by members of the party brought to San Diego aboard a naval destroyer.

Nine of the 12 persons who were stranded for several days on Guadalupe, which is 200 miles south of here, were brought into port by the destroyer U. S. S. Aaron Ward.

Three others remained on the Mexican owned island to carry on duties in connection with a plan to commercialize the raising of 60,000 wild goats which roam the barren land.

Among those brought here was Captain L. Sayers, master of the Eola. A lanky, freckled man with tousled hair and a shrunken, time strained uniform, he said that death often was near when the sea tossed the Eola about at its anchorage.

"There were six beside myself on board," he said. "The sea had been calm since we anchored that morning (Sunday, November 30). But about 11:30 p. m. the wind swept down the sides of the high peaks on the island and met, forming an eddy where we were anchored."

There were three men, three women and an 11 year old boy on board. The other five persons, including two small girls, were sleeping in cabins ashore.

"We got everyone in the skiff and then the fight started," Captain Sayers continued. "We couldn't row straight for the rocky shore line and had to head for the beach. But the wind got us and drove us half a mile out to sea. It looked bad and the sea was very rough. The Eola was on the rocks three minutes after she started dragging her anchors."

"We put everything we had into the fight and finally reached the beach. But it was a 45 minute battle. By morning the Eola was totally submerged. But on Thursday another wind came up and the wreckage was strewn all along the shore line of the island."

Seven Lives Are Lost In Car Crashes

SIX TRAFFIC FATALITIES ARE REPORTED NEAR LOS ANGELES

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—(UP)—With clean slates from the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, the latter heavily congested with north-south football traffic, California's toll of violent fatalities was unusually small over last week week end.

Of ten violent deaths, automobiles accounted for seven, and six of these occurred in and near Los Angeles, where traffic conditions were as difficult as they have been in years.

The toll by cities:

In Oakland, Josephine McCrory, 25, and Mrs. Hazel Rolls, 28, were suicides.

In San Francisco, Captain Daniel R. Sewall, 65, retired fire official died of burns suffered when a match fired his bedclothes. Paralyzed, Capt. Sewall was forced to lie motionless and burn to death.

Edward F. Evans, 50, was killed when a hit-run driver crowded his car to the curb. The car skidded and overturned. Evans died later from a fractured skull.

In and near Los Angeles, extraordinary handling by police of the tremendous football crowds kept traffic fatalities at a minimum, six lives being lost in the whole of Southern California.

Joe Florio and Annie Florio, his sister, were killed in a head-on collision on the Ridge route.

James Bishop, 65, Monrovia, was run down by his son-in-law, Homer Boyer.

Mrs. Lora Hall, 67, of Bell, was run down.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Four of the seven maniacs who made a spectacular escape Thursday from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Beason, N.Y., were back in the hospital today through quick work of a young third-grade detective.

George E. Wobber, assigned to Brooklyn headquarters, held the four desperate men and a woman at bay for nearly half an hour in a bare, dimly lighted apartment before dawn yesterday until other detectives arrived to arrest them.

The four recaptured were William H. Nelson, 21, the insane burglar who escaped two weeks ago and returned to liberate six other inmates; Harry Gordon, known as the "mad butcher of Rochester"; John Diggins, 30, and Frank Campbell. The woman arrested with them, charged with harboring criminals, was Mrs. Marie Ockenfels, 30.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT ASKS $68,552,006 FOR FISCAL YEAR FOR ALL AGENCIES

DAM FUNDS REDUCED

House Committee Cuts $2,000,000 From Amount Set By Bureau of Budget

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Total new appropriations of $68,552,006.73 for the various agencies of the interior department, including $24,423,486.73 for Indians and $15,000,000 for the Hoover dam project are provided in the annual department supply bill for the next fiscal year presented to the house today.

The appropriation for the Indians, which reflects the mounting cost of the red men wards of Uncle Sam, is the largest single item in the bill, the next largest being funds for continuing work in the Hoover dam project at Boulder canyon.

Increases in appropriations for these two matters are responsible for a general increase in proposed appropriations for the next fiscal year, beginning next July 1, over those for the current year. New appropriations for the next year compare with $62,911,823.74 for the 1931 fiscal year.

In addition, the bill carries re-appropriations aggregating $15,362,500, making the total $85,345,211.73. As in the first supply bill passed by the house last week, the billion dollar treasury post office measure, the house appropriations committee continued its economy by reducing the amount below estimates of the budget bureau, in this case by $540,705.

The Hoover dam appropriation of $15,000,000 is $2,000,000 less than recommended by the budget bureau.

"The reduction is possible without delaying the project," the committee explained, "due to certain changes of plans with reference to construction of the railroad to connect the site with the Union Pacific and securing of electric power during construction."

The committee rejected the interior department recommendation for $50,000 for investigation to determine the lands in Arizona that should be embraced within the Gila Reclamation project.

Appropriations provided for reclamation.

Those who returned here on the Aaron Ward were Captain Sayers, S. F. Frisbee, Mrs. Anna Frisbee, Hazel Frisbee, 14, Lucille Frisbee, 19, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Verlee, her 13 1/2 year old daughter; J. M. McPate and H. R. Tiffany, Frisbee, Mrs. Johnson, who is his daughter, and Verlee, had been on the island for nine months tending the goats.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson and their son, Theron, 11, who left San Pedro for Guadalupe Island with the others on November 26, remained on the island temporarily. Watson was a hero aboard the Eola when she was being battered, Captain Sayers said. The three Watsons, Lucille and Anna Frisbee, and Mrs. Johnson were the passengers aboard the Eola that night.

Once ashore, a crude radio was rigged up. The party had plenty of provisions but boats had so seldom at rugged Guadalupe they might have been there for weeks. Their predicament was discovered by a naval aviator, Lieutenant C. F. Horn, one of the 24 flying from the airplane carrier Langley, which, with 10 destroyers, has been searching for the missing trawler, Fidelity.

SUPPLY BILL PUT BEFORE HOUSE TODAY

tion included the following projects:

Yuma project, Arizona-California $25,000; not to exceed $25,000 of power revenues, for operation commercial system.

Orlando project, California $39,000.

The large outlay for the care of the Indian wards of the government, for which $24,423,496 is provided in the interior department appropriation bill presented to the house today, has raised the question among government officials and members of congress as to the future policy with respect to the red men.

Secretary of Interior Wilbur and members of the house appropriations committee discussed the whole subject at length when the interior bill was being drafted by the committee, but decided to appropriate the large amount this year, it was revealed in the testimony made public today.

JUDGE SCORES ASSOCIATES FOR BILLINGS CASE RULING

"It is unsound because its conclusions are not founded upon established facts.

"Suspicious, conjectures, unwarranted inferences, irreconcilable inconsistencies and admitted perjuries are treated as facts. It is indefensible because it appeals to passion and prejudice.

"One-fourth of the report is devoted to an anarchistic propaganda and the ban character of the petitioner. The trial court properly held that these matters were not admissible. It is manifestly improper to inject them into this inquiry.

"It may be admitted that Billings was a most undesirable citizen. He says so himself. To some people this may appear to be an abundant reason to leave him where he is.

"A judicial officer, bound by oath, to secure for any person accused of crime a fair trial, must be immune from any such suggestion. Our duty is to determine, uninfluenced by passion or prejudice, whether Billings has been proven guilty of the crime with which he is charged.

"I do not know whether Billings is guilty or innocent of the crime with which he is charged.

"Failure of Proof

"I do know that there has been a failure of proof to such an extent that there is now not even the semblance of a case against him.

"Upon the record now before us a recommendation for executive clemency cannot justly be withheld.

"In that record the indispensable witness is John MacDonald. Irrespective of what influences caused MacDonald to testify as he did in the original trial, his testimony must now be discarded as a factor in the case, for MacDonald is so thoroughly discredited as to be absolutely unworthy of credence.

Goff's Testimony Cited

"His word is worthless for any purpose. I am supported in this view by Captain Goff. In a letter recommending a pardon for Mooney he referred to Oxman and MacDonald as 'the two vital witnesses' and said: 'If I were a juror sitting in the case I would not in my present frame of mind consider their testimony for a single minute when a human life was being weighed in the balance.'

"As in the Mooney case, so in the Billings case the testimony of MacDonald is of vital importance. With him discredited, the chain of proof is broken, and the case against the petitioner falls.

"It was this elimination of MacDonald as a creditable witness that prompted Captain Matheson and former Deputy District Attorney Brennan, who prosecuted Billings, to recommend a pardon for him.

Jury Knew More

"It was for this same reason that such recommendations were made by trial jurors. The opinions of these men on the effect of MacDonald's testimony are entitled to great weight.

"They know more about the conduct and the merits of the case than we can ever learn from our reading of the record.

"I deem their statements of the highest importance, and I cannot understand the failure of the majority to give them their proper consideration.

"This case hinges on the identification of Billings. MacDonald is the identifying witness. The first identification made by MacDonald was in his statement to the police.

"In that statement he gave a detailed description of the man whom he claimed to have seen at Steuart and Market streets.

"It is absolutely impossible to recognize Mooney or Billings in either description. No officer could have arrested them and no district attorney could have prosecuted them in reliance upon that statement. It is significant that this identification by MacDonald of two unknown persons is in complete accord with his testimony at the hearing which has just been concluded.

"It is equally significant that this first statement was never presented in any court, and appeared for the first time in the hearing before us.

"Its production would have challenged any subsequent identification.

"Tested by this statement, the incidents of the 'Rogues' Gallery' book and the trip through the jail lose their importance. For the more positive his later identification appears, the less credence can be given it, in view of his earlier statement.

Billings Case Drops

"That statement nullifies his testimony. When fairly considered, the bottom drops out of the case against Billings.

"MacDonald's testimony, moreover, cannot be reconciled with the established fact that Mooney was on the Ellers building from 1:58 p. m. to 2:04 p. m., as shown by the photographs of the building and the street clocks.

"According to MacDonald's testimony, Mooney and Billings were together at 8 or 10 minutes before 2 p. m. at Steuart and Market streets and left about 2 p. m., Billings crossing Market street and proceeding in the direction of the Embarcadero and Mooney going in a northwesterly direction.

Photographs Considered

"The justices of this court, since the hearing, on their own initiative, conducted an exhaustive investigation of the photographs relied upon by the defense, in order to determine whether they had been tampered with.

"The report of the experts, who checked the time shown on the clocks pictured therein against calculations based upon the lines of certain shadows on the building, definitely establishes the authenticity of these pictures with respect to the time indicated.

"The majority opinion has absolutely failed, as have all witnesses and officials connected with the case, to reconcile MacDonald's testimony with the evidence of the clocks. It cannot be reconciled, and for this reason MacDonald's testimony cannot be true.

No Other Witness

"No other witness connects Billings with the crime. The only other persons who place him near the scene of the explosion are Crowley and Oxman.

"Crowley has Billings and another man at 1:55 p. m. on Steuart and Mission streets, headed south toward Howard street, Oxman has Billings, Mooney, Mrs. Mooney and Weinberg coming to the scene in an automobile.

"Disregarding for the moment the charge that Oxman was a perjurer and suborner of perjury, and that Crowley has a criminal record, and taking their testimony at its face value, what is it worth? Nothing at all.

"If Crowley told the truth, MacDonald lied; if MacDonald told the truth, Crowley lied; and if Oxman told the truth, both of the others lied. If any doubt exists as to the value of Crowley as a witness, it is dispelled by the action of the prosecution in abandoning him after the Billings trial.

"I might stop with this consideration of the evidence were it not for the exaggerated importance which has been given to the testimony of Estelle Smith.

"Without delving into the police record of the irresponsible woman, it is sufficient to point out first, that she repudiated her original testimony in an affidavit signed on March 19, 1929.

"At the hearing before us, she was contradicted on material matters by the witnesses Pickert, Brennan, Matheson, Goff and Older.

"I can well understand why she, too, was abandoned by the prosecution as a witness in the trials subsequent to the Billings case.

"No district attorney, discovering her true character, would use her as a witness. Her credibility is as completely destroyed as that of MacDonald.

Witnesses Discredited

"All of the other witnesses at 721 Market street have either repudiated their testimony or have been challenged by contradictory evidence, or have, as in the case of MacDonald, been discredited, when their testimony was considered in connection with established facts.

"The requirement of the majority that the petitioner prove his innocence, either by establishing an alibi or by identifying the perpetrator of the crime, is unreasonable and unwarranted.

"A perfectly innocent person may be unable to prove an alibi. And it is preposterous to demand of the accused that he place his finger upon the real culprit in order to exculpate himself.

"Although Billings has presented an alibi, it is unnecessary for us to consider it. When the chain of proof is destroyed, he needs none.

Frame-Up Eliminated

"Nor am I interested in the charge of frame-up. It has been eliminated from the issues, and it would be improper to discuss it.

"This charge rests largely upon the statements of Estelle Smith and John MacDonald, and there is doubtless no more reason to believe their accusations against officers of the law than their testimony against the petitioner.

"I am equally unconcerned with the activities of those individuals and organizations that have interested themselves in the release of Mooney and Billings.

"Whether their actions are subject to the criticism made in the majority report is a matter which does not affect the guilt or innocence of Billings.

MacDonald Unreliable

"MacDonald stands discredited by his own first statement to the police and by the evidence of the photographs, and it is unnecessary to rely upon his repudiation.

"The justices of this court are given no pardoning power by the constitution or statutes of this state. That power rests with the governor, and may be exercised by him for reasons of his own.

"Proof of innocence has never been an essential requirement for its exercise. It cannot be required as a condition to a recommendation which is itself not final. If we find that there has been a failure of proof of guilt, it is proper for us to make the recommendation on that ground. Our task is then ended.

"The governor is then free to act as he may desire. The majority report leaves the hands of the governor tied.

"Unless and until the constitution of the state is amended, or three justices of this court change their views, the governor is powerless to consider petitioner's application irrespective of his own views of its merits."

WILLIAM H. LANGDON,
Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

HARRY D. RILEY AUTO SALE IS GREAT SUCCESS

Twenty-six hours with his hand continuously holding a ring in the top of an iron post set in the concrete floor entrance of the Harry D. Riley used car sales room, at 505 South Main street, was the biggest part of the price paid by Lloyd McNeil, Santa Ana man, for the 39-cent bargain automobile, featured in the used car sale held by Riley which started Saturday.

All night long this young man was on the job with his hand in the ring and being watched by other persons who would have grabbed the ring had he fallen asleep or slipped for only a fraction of a second. His courage and grit kept him on the job, and at 1 o'clock Saturday noon the car was delivered to him supplied with gasoline, oil and grease and in good running order.

"Am sure pleased with my bargain, and I don't know how I could have made a 25.00 any easier—can't do it carrying brick," he yelled, as he drove away in his new car.

"The sale was surely a success," said Harry D. "First time in my 19 years experience as an automobile dealer that I had customers waiting in line to buy cars. Why I even had to hand out numbers as they were lined up so as to enable my customers to select their car in turn, thus avoiding confusion and unpleasantness. And I'm wondering who it is that said there wasn't any money in the community to spend. Had they been down to my store at noon Saturday they would surely have changed their minds.

"My advertisement in the Register read that 'No cars would be sold, no orders taken or reservations accepted from 6 o'clock Thursday night until 1 o'clock Saturday noon.' Many persons came, inspected the cars and wanted to place deposits on the car of their choice, but I could not accept their deposits owing to my having agreed at the beginning not to accept any before the start of the sale, and as a result some were a little disappointed. I hope sincerely that none is bearing any ill feeling over the matter, as I was only carrying out my agreement, and was serving everyone alike."

Seven automobiles were sold in the first 40 minutes of the sale and a total of 11 for the afternoon's business, representing several thousands of dollars.

Police officers were today searching for Maria Garcia, 18, and Josephine Esquivel, 18, Delhi girls, who disappeared from their homes yesterday. The girls are believed to have gone away with several Mexican boys, according to a report filed at the police station.

HOOVER PLAN CRITICISED BY DEMOCRAT

dent Hoover's program for legislation to meet emergency conditions.

President Hoover suggested a $25,000,000 figure for drought relief but the senate agricultural committee was offering a bill appropriating $60,000,000.

Important matters were being taken up in committee. The senate finance committee was holding hearings on Mr. Hoover's tariff commission selections and a house appropriations subcommittee called prohibition. Commissioner Woodcock for questioning about his desire for 500 more dry agents.

The postoffice and treasury appropriations, passed by the house, went to the senate appropriations committee.

The Nye campaign expenditures committee of the senate expects to report this week on the expenditures of Senator Davis, Republican, Pennsylvania, and a contest over his seat may be precipitated. Majority of the senate could decide whether the amount spent warranted expulsion.

Chairman Nye plans to hear testimony during the week from Samuel Vaulain, who raised funds for Republican candidates in Pennsylvania.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

One looks at a muddy pool and sees only the mire. Another sees the skies of heaven reflected there.

If you see only the troubled, murky waters in your own life, there is little of comfort and inspiration there. If you look signs of God's loving Presence reflected in your heart, you will find Him there.

It is important to observe that God loves you, whether you love Him or not; He comes to you to help you bear your grief, while you invite Him and recognize Him or not.

If you will open your heart to His presence, and find one strength from Him, you will go forward triumphantly.

Convict On Stand At Garcia Trial

During the trial today of Tony Garcia, who is charged with receiving stolen property, a San Quentin prisoner took the stand as a defense witness in the court of Judge James L. Allen. The witness was Joe Garcia, who recently entered a plea of guilty to a similar charge and was sentenced to state's prison.

Joe Garcia testified that he was not related to the defendant now on trial and that he had rented his own house to Tony. He left in it, however, all his belongings, he stated. He declared that he brought the property in question to the house in company with another man, but denied that he gave or sold any to Tony Garcia. He admitted that he was drunk at the time he brought the goods there and that he put them in the house, however, Tony Garcia is being defended by J. S. Manning, Negro attorney.

40 PERCENT OF THOSE ARE NOT MARRIED MEN

That the actual number of unemployed in Santa Ana is less than was expected, and that the need for jobs for those who are out of work is distressingly urgent are two facts which stand out from the experience of the workers at the city employment office opened last Friday at 113 North Main street.

Up to 10 o'clock this morning, 205 applicants for work had registered at the office. This is taken as proof of the majority of those who are permanent residents of the city who are in serious need of work.

Up to this morning, there had been exactly five jobs reported at the office, and these were filled as fast as they came in. A score of men spent the day waiting around, anxiously crowding in every time the telephone rang, in hope that someone else might have a day's work.

Of the list of applicants on file, R. R. Miller, who is in charge of the office, stated that a rough tabulation indicates that about 40 per cent are single, men, with no dependents, 20 per cent are with one dependent, and about 40 per cent have two or more dependents on their hands.

All sorts of trades and lines of work were represented among the applicants, but practically every one of them is ready to tackle any job of common labor that is available that will enable him to provide food and shelter for himself and his family.

Cases of extreme need, with conditions approaching tragedy, are not lacking in the day's work at the employment office. Here is a specimen.

This is a married man with three children, the oldest of whom is five years of age. He has lived in Santa Ana for 11 years, and has been employed as a laborer and a truck driver. For three months he has been out of work, living on credit with merchants whom he had patronized when he had money. He is at the end of his credit, and must have work or become a charge on public charity, which he is unwilling to do.

He is one of a number of cases of extreme necessity, who must have work or aid, to keep their families from actual suffering.

Miller pointed out this morning that the only sane and reasonable way to meet this situation is for the people of the community to provide jobs.

"Almost any person of humane instincts will help another in distress," said Miller. "Any tramp can get a free meal from some kind-hearted citizen. How much better it is to handle our benevolences in a systematic manner, so that the giver as well as the recipient may get good from it."

"There is hardly a household in the city that does not have work enough in sight to keep a man or woman busy for a couple of days cleaning up the house or yard, washing windows, trimming trees, cutting wood, or doing any of the

13 INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES OVER WEEK END

Thirteen persons were hurt in seven automobile accidents reported to police in Orange county over the week end. No one was believed seriously hurt.

Sheriff's officers today were seeking the driver of an automobile registered to Albino Cedello, of 605 East Charles street, Anaheim, following an accident on Stanton road, 500 feet north of Ball road at midnight Saturday, in which three automobiles piled up.

The driver of the car is said to have jumped out of his machine soon after the crash and to have run away through an orange grove, leaving the car in the highway.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McGee, of Buena Park, occupants of one car, were injured. Mr. McGee suffered cuts above the ear and Mrs. McGee is in the Orange county hospital suffering from a scalp wound and other cuts and bruises.

According to a report for the accident, the Cedello machine struck the McGee car, causing it to collide with a car registered to B. H. Stewart of 337 Eighth street, Huntington Beach.

F. L. Humiston, deputy sheriff, who with Jess Elliott, constable, was called to the scene of the wreck, trailed the runaway driver through the orange grove. As they were trailing him, several shots rang out nearby and when they went to investigate found a woman with a rifle in her hands. She reported she had seen a man near her barn and had fired at him several times. The barn was searched but no trace of the driver of the Cedello car was found.

Excitement prevails at all the movie studios in Hollywood, owing to the many acts that have been signed to come here for the Peace Officers' circus. All the acts are busy rehearsing for hours daily, so that they will be in shape to give the patrons of the circus a run for their money.

"Peanuts" the movie elephant, is restless, away from one side to the other, knowing that he is to strut his stuff, as he did when he was a star performer on one of the big shows, before becoming a star in the movies.

Wednesday a special train of the circus will arrive in Santa Ana, and then hundreds of workmen will start erecting the huge "big top" and the sideshow, and other tents on the circus grounds.

There will be two performances each day, starting promptly at 2 in the afternoon and 8 o'clock at night. Doors open one hour earlier to accommodate the big crowds that are expected to attend the circus.

Mrs. B. S. Harrison, of 1405 Bush street, reported she surprised a prowler on her back porch early last night. Police searched the neighborhood, but no one was found.

Great Indian fighter, scout and pioneer of early days. Could hit a squirrel in the eye with a rifle at 150 paces and scalp an Indian with two knife strokes and a jerk. Wore fur hats and leather clothes winter and summer and never knew the joy of getting into cool linens, fresh from the laundry on a hot day. And I'll say he missed something!

GEORGE BANCROFT FILM AT WALKER'S

Hall the new show world in all-talking pictures. Paramount has put real old time action in the talkies! George Bancroft in "The Mighty" at Walker's State theater, is a real thriller. Things we had expected to wait years to see and hear have been bundled into this picture in a grand style.

The cast is a real thrill, just read these names: George Bancroft, Esther Ralston, Warner Oland, Raymond Hatton, O. P. Heggie, Dorothy Revier and Morgan Parley. The story is that of a pre-war gunman who smiled at the law, was forced into the war and emerged a national hero without a past. He is made police chief of a crime ridden city, but his old gang finds him and they plan a grand raid, with his aid. Growing tired of waiting they hold up three banks while Bancroft and the police force are at a picnic. Off goes deep-chested George at the head of 50 motorcycle officers, riding at break neck speed firing as fast as their automatics will shoot! What a thrill! From thence on the action is so swift that we are told six cameras were required to catch it, and you won't doubt this statement in the least when you see and hear "The Mighty."

Long Beach Man Faces Charges Of Child Theft

Carl K. McWha, 32, employee of the Long Beach Used Car lot, today faces a charge of child stealing in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court, following his asserted repossessing of an automobile found on a Buena Park street Saturday afternoon.

The car was the property of Mrs. N. B. Rosenberger, of Buena Park. She left the car at the curb with her 4-year-old son inside and the car was repossessed by McWha, according to reports received here, he took the machine and the young son, too.

Mrs. Rosenberger, returning to her car, found it gone and immediately suspected that her son had been kidnapped. She notified the sheriff's office and a search for the lad was started.

McWha, in his eagerness to repossess the car, failed to eject the boy at the point where he took the car, later leaving him at his home, it was reported.

A warrant charging child stealing was issued against McWha and he surrendered at the jail here yesterday. He immediately was freed on bail of $500 and is scheduled to appear in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this afternoon.

WORK STARTED ON NEW ORANGE SCHOOL

Excavating work for the new Lydia Killifer grade school on North Lemon street, Orange, started today under the direction of Jules W. Markel and sons, Santa Ana, contractors. The building permit was for $38,692. Twenty-five men are employed on the job.

PLANS OF NEW SEVEN PERSONS POST OFFICE ARRESTED ON RECEIVED HERE LIQUOR COUNTS

A complete set of plans and specifications of Santa Ana's new federal building, bids for which will be opened in Washington on January 12 were received this morning by Terry E. Stephenson, postmaster. This is the first set received in Santa Ana.

Local postal authorities expressed themselves as delighted with the general appearance of the building, as indicated by the blueprints. The structure is to be of two-story brick construction with stucco finish, tile roof and marble and metal decorations around the doors and windows.

The building is to face Bush street between Sixth and Seventh streets, on property measuring 250 feet on Bush with a depth of 150 feet on Seventh and 125 feet on Sixth. The foundation will measure 139 feet on Bush by 102 feet depth.

The north wall of the building will be 24 feet from the sidewalk. "That saves the fine oak tree," said Stephenson, who, a few weeks ago, wrote to the architect in charge of the plans asking that the tree be saved. When Stephenson wrote, the wall had been located exactly across the tree's trunk.

The front of the building will be set back eight feet from the sidewalk. Grass will be planted on the south, front and north. The loading zone, where mail will be received by truck, will be located at the rear of the lot on Sixth and Bush. The building is to be heated by steam from a low pressure gas furnace.

Seven persons were arrested over the week-end by Santa Ana police officers on liquor charges. All were lodged in the county jail, and all were scheduled to be in court here this afternoon.

Pastell Romero, 47, of El Toro, was arrested near San Juan Capistrano yesterday afternoon by Joe Clever, state traffic officer, on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. James Pickard, 48, of Los Angeles, by Officer Jensen at 10 o'clock last night on a drunk charge.

Samuel Rogers, 65, Santa Ana, charged with being drunk was arrested at 7 o'clock Saturday night, and James Pickard and Salvato Benios, 61, both of Santa Ana were booked at the county jail on drunk charges.

Charged with possession of liquor, Mike Mendez, 28, of 1821 West First street, and Steve Boras, 26, of Delhi, were arrested over the week end by city officers. Both are said to have had a small amount of liquor in their possession at the time.

STEAL GOLDFISH

Goldfish stealing is the latest "pastime" of Santa Ana youths who have attracted attention at the police station.

Officers were called out to 2385 Riverside Drive yesterday morning by an irate matron who claimed that the boys were taking goldfish from her backyard pond. When officers arrived the boys had disappeared.

county. Clamfont stated today that there are ample seating facilities in the auditorium for a large crowd, for whose enjoyment an unusually colorful program has been arranged, which will be expressive of the Christmas spirit. Numbers especially suggested by Christmas themes will be combined with various modern masterpieces, that will have their local premiere on this occasion.

Favorite Christmas songs by the Treble Clef Club will be an additional feature. William Clare Hall, who is directing the club in its first public appearance since his recent appointment to this post, is a musician of first rank, having scored numerous triumphs in the East, both as a concert artist and a teacher of vast experience. Mr. Hall, who has to his credit many successes in opera and oratorio, is a leader of distinctive personality, and under his influence the club is said to have made considerable progress.

Especially will contrast and novelty mark selections chosen by the band for this Yuletide program, ranging from the entire "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikowsky and Verdi's "Joan d'Arc" overture, to several modern works by such renowned figures as Henry Hadley, one of America's foremost contemporary musical authorities, also the colorful four-part suite, "Atlantis," a descriptive work of highly dramatic content.

REV. BUCHANAN CITY BAND TO TALKS BEFORE GIVE ANNUAL BIBLE CLASS XMAS CONCERT

Choosing for his subject "The World's Greatest Book," the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, gave a most interesting message to the members of the Men's Community Bible class at its regular service in the Fox West Coast theater yesterday morning.

"When Jesus was praying in the upper room with the disciples," the teacher began, "He asked the Father that they be sanctified in truth and said in His prayer 'Thy word is truth.' He meant by that the truths of God as revealed through Him and the Bible. God does not change, nor does His word. Only man changes because he is inferior.

"The world's literature is mighty in volume. But what becomes of it? There are only about 5000 choice books out of the whole mass. One book—God's word—stands out above all. Its truth leads on in every age and period. The Bible has one great thought running through it—the good of mankind. It tells how God has worked and planned to make men better. The Bible was 1500 years in its writing and had 40 authors. What kind of a book would we have had if these 40 writers were not guided and directed by God?

"This book warns men against sin and urges repentance and loyalty. God wants you to be happy, to live in a beautiful harmonious way. He cares for your soul. If your spirit thinks love and beauty and harmony, then your soul lives forever in the presence of God. But if it thinks filth and rot and sin, is it fit to live with Him? What God wrote His book for was to show men how to live so souls would be saved. It is so much better to live up in the purity of God than down in the filth of the gutter.

"The only book to guide to purity, holiness and righteousness is the Bible. You find the finest citizenship and the happiest homes where the Bible is a power and people believe its message. Those not living with God are worried and distressed. Here you find the principles to make life worth while. Live to make others strong and happy and respect God. What a fine world it would be if we would all do that.

"Take God's book. Meditate upon it. Make it part of your life. You will find it a great guide in all that you do."

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for coughs from colds that hang on, for quick relief, for safety. Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts. The cost is $1.25—a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known. CREOMULSION for Difficult Coughs from Colds

When Santa Ana Municipal Band presents its annual Christmas concert program in Santa Ana High School Auditorium tomorrow evening, at 8:00 p. m., under the direction of D. C. Clamfont, a special feature will be the presence among the band personnel of two of Los Angeles' foremost professional musicians, F. Perno who is first trumpet in the famous Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, and Pierre Parisi, first French horn with the Los Angeles Opera company.

Parisi, who is a native of Rome, Italy, is a personal friend of Director Clamfont, who was acquainted with him many years ago in Italy before coming to America. Perno has also been a friend of Clamfont for many years.

ROUND TABLE CAFE IS TO LOCATE HERE

The Merry-Go-Round cafe system, which is to sponsor an hour's program tonight over KREG, will locate one of its unique restaurants in Santa Ana in the near future. It was announced today by Cliff McAfee, vice-president of the organization. McAfee and Dem Rust, also connected with the cafe organization, were in Santa Ana in connection with the concern's plans to locate here.

Although no site for the restaurant has been selected, several offers have been considered and as soon as satisfactory arrangements have been made the work of installing one of the round table cafes will start here, the officials said.

The system now includes about 12 cafes in Southern California and it is expected that the one to be located in Santa Ana probably will be the next one to start operation.

At a Merry-Go-Round cafe the patrons select their menus as the food passes them on a revolving table. Expenses of operation are cut down because this system allows the cafe to operate with a minimum of labor expense.

The KREG program will be heard from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

A CATTY STORY

NEW YORK CITY.—When Patrolman Moore arrived at Grace Martell's apartment he was greeted by a chorus of cat-calls. He looked and found more than 100 felines in various poses. One was dressed as an Arab, and another sported boots. The policeman explained to Miss Martell that she'd have to get rid of her cat circus. She agreed with the policeman and got rid of all of them except one.

HOW BATTLES ARE WON TOLD BY REV. SOPER

"How Battles Were Won and Lost" was the theme of the message delivered at the Full Gospel Assembly, Third and Forest streets, yesterday morning by the Rev. J. K. Soper, who took his text from Deut. 20:1-4: "When you go out to battle against your enemies, be not afraid, for God is with you. Let not your heart faint, fear not, and do not tremble, neither be terrified because of enemies, for God will fight for you." True we find that these enemies look like giants in our sight, the greatest being unbelief. But Jesus said all things are possible to him that believeth. In time of sickness have faith in God, Jesus is the same yesterday, and today, and forever. He heals the sick. He will deliver us from habits, for He came to deliver the captives who are held bound by Satan.

"We must be like Joshua and Caleb, who went in to Canaan's land and brought out clusters of grapes, pomegranates and figs and said, 'Surely it is a land that floweth with milk and honey, nevertheless the people are strong; but we are able to overcome them. Let us go up at once and possess it.' That is faith in God.

"The other ten spies said, 'We are not able. They are too strong for us. Why we were as grasshoppers in their sight.' That is like some people that we come in touch with whose God is a very small one. But our God is the same God that fed the children of Israel in the wilderness with manna, gave them water in the desert, and fed Elijah by a raven. "Our God is a supernatural God and He will do the supernatural for us. Yes, there will be many who will be like the ten spies who will say that the day of miracles is past. But that does not change God's word. We find that many battles were won by praising the Lord. In 2nd Chron. 20:21 we find that Jehoshaphat won the battle against the enemy by having the singers go before the army praising the Lord. Let us win battles in like manner.

"Now the reason that so many battles are lost is because there has been sin in the camp. Jesus said, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and render unto God the things that belong to God.' One-tenth of our income belongs to God. You say I pay my tithes, well it may be you are hiding malice, anger, deceit and wrath in your heart. These are the things that make us lose the battle, and shut the gates in Heaven against us.

"Let us keep our eyes on Jesus the only true example, and follow in His steps, then our faith will rise and we will be a source of comfort to the sick and needy, both in temporal and spiritual blessings."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon, Sunday, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The following words of Isaiah constituted one of the Scripture selections in the Lesson-Sermon: "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might He increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

A passage from the chapter "Footsteps of Truth," in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Omnipotent and infinite Mind made all and includes all. This Mind does not make mistakes, and subsequently correct them. God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die."

'AUTHORITY OF JESUS TODAY' SUNDAY TOPIC

ORANGE, Dec. 8.—"The Authority of Jesus Today" was the subject of the sermon given Sunday morning by the Rev. Franklin H. Minck at the Christian church. The choir gave the anthem, "Behold, God is My Helper," by Adams, Mrs. Leon Des Larnes sang, "Give Alms of Thy Goods," by Boncompagni.

Recognize Authority
The Rev. Mr. Minck said in part: "All authority hath been given unto Me in heaven and on earth," were Jesus's words. There will be a revival today and the pagan world will recognize the authority of Jesus when the lethargy on the part of the Christians is gone. There will be a renewal of the knowledge of the authority of Jesus. The 600 millions and more Christians in the world today recognize the authority of Jesus by His character. The scribes held their authority by their office and the traditions handed down to them but the authority of Jesus came from His character. Today, we recognize the divine character of Christ. And He had perfect knowledge in the spiritual world. He knew the will of the Father. Jesus knew about God. He spoke with authority because He had a perfect knowledge with which to speak.

"Jesus had the authority of power to do things in the spiritual realm, to heal the body, to heal the soul, to meet the need of mankind. Christ was a man of perfect knowledge, the Son of God. Jesus had authority and has now sonship with power to save from sin. 'All authority hath been given unto Me in heaven and on earth.'"

Reaching Christ
Sunday evening, the subject of the sermon was "Reaching Christ in Spite of Obstacles." The Girls' chorus sang "Sundown," by Ira A. Wilson, led by Mrs. Walter Kogler with Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake accompanist. The Boys' and Girls' choir sang "March On."

The Rev. Mr. Minck said in part: "Reaching Christ in spite of obstacles. There are obstacles to face and obstacles to overcome. Would you be willing to pay the price? With the faith of God in your hearts, we can overcome the obstacles. Jesus has a drawing power. Trusting oneself to the keeping of God requires faith and courage. We must place our trust in God completely. Believe in God and 'Lo I am with you always.' He will care for you. He will save you. There is a tendency to place your trust in something else but Christ says 'I am with you always.'"

Need Faith

"We need a faith deeper than knowledge. We have the knowledge of Christ and there is the danger of having the knowledge and not the faith. We need the faith with our knowledge of Christ before we can bring others to Christ. We must overcome the obstacles in our own heart and then we can bring our knowledge and faith to other hearts."

Heavy Gas Pressure Encountered In Two Test Wells

7500 FEET OF 5-INCH CASING FOR SUPERIOR

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 8.—The Superior Oil company hauled in 7500 feet of five-inch casing Sunday morning at its well at Twentieth and Walnut streets in the west end town lot section of the field. The well had been filled with barium mud to prevent its blowing out and the work of setting casing will start at once. The Superior is believed to have found a promising sand below 7400 feet.

The gas pressure is so heavy that the well is threatening to blow out the mud and come in barefooted. Every appliance and attachment known to oil well drilling science is being used in an effort to prevent a blowout until after the casing is set.

The McCasland well at Twentieth and Olive, two blocks away, is blowing oil and gas at a depth below 7000 feet and the fact that this well is nearing the deep sand prevents any attempt of the Superior well to cover up its discovery.

With the moving of casing to the Superior well the speculators and the lease agents got busy in the field and Saturday and Sunday the oil field was a beehive of activity. But the activity started late. Most of the desirable leases in the field had been obtained weeks ahead of the oil discovery. There is always the chance that the deep oil sand will spread beyond the boundaries of the shallow field, as it has done at Signal Hill and Santa Fe Springs, the field area in each of those fields being more than doubled by the discovery of deep oil. This condition is almost certain to obtain at Huntington Beach. Major companies are already negotiating for leases on the east side and the northwest extension of the field to the edge of the mesa and even extending out into the flats surrounding the city on three sides.

Stevens brothers of Long Beach, leased the old plant acreage and were completing their derrick Sunday with carpenters driving nails with all possible speed atop the new 125-foot derrick all day. This lease is half a mile northwest of proven territory.

Those who are usually well informed say that the gravity tests of the oil at both the McCasland and Superior wells run better than 35 per cent.

MACHINE AGE IS DISCUSSED IN FULLERTON

FULLERTON, Dec. 8.—"The machine age has not only brought great advantages to people of the modern world; it has brought also serious difficulties, and the man who thinks that to produce many commodities makes a nation prosperous sees only half the truth," said the Rev. Graham C. Hunter yesterday at the Presbyterian church speaking on the subject, "The struggle to preserve personality in the machine age."

"When a person ceases to possess individuality, his growth ends. We come here with a sense of being under daily pressure to conform. We feel driven so that it is hard to be ourselves. We need restoration of our souls. We have seen the world make great advances in a material way, and in the midst of all that progress seen many individuals suffer intensely. Our age has not yet learned how to use to best advantage the tools which it has.

Lacked Knowledge
"The present widespread economic depression around the world is an example of the economic crisis. Such crises come in cycles. This one has brought untold agony to millions, probably more than four millions in America and three times as many in other parts of the world. It is due to lack of social knowledge as to how to handle machines. To the same weakness of the spiritual forces is the growth of badly-planned districts in the cities, for example Belvedere on the outskirts of Los Angeles. Ten years ago the Mexican population of the plaza district moved out to Belvedere. A little co-operative planning on the part of California government officials, or even of citizens, would have made Belvedere into a wholesome and attractive suburb at no additional expense. But our casual way of going at things left all the initiative to those who might happen to find a chance for profit. So the new city is unplanned, crowded, with many crime centers. Instead of building effective personalities, we have allowed a slum to spring up which destroys them."

Other bad effects of the machine age have been the weakening of the homes of the world; the mechanization of play; the failure of education to become creative rather than transmissive; the making of labor into an exhausting speed-up process rather than an opportunity for joy and beauty; the fear of the privileged groups of the world of experiments in social control.

"The result is that many people today feel that harm has been done to their personalities by environment and daily work. They need some way of finding restoration."

Help From Unseen
"Long ago a Hebrew Psalmist felt battered by the world. He turned to an inward seeking of God, and to the outward seeking of God's will in society. He sought both the green pastures of individual worship, and also the paths of righteousness in social adventuring. In both quests he found help from the unseen, so that he could say of

State Ready To Pay Half Of Crossing

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 8.—The state of California will take care of half the cost of the proposed overheard crossing at the Arches intersection of the Coast highway and Newport boulevard, according to word received by City Engineer F. L. Patterson and H. V. Cortelyou, district engineer of the state highway department.

As the total cost is estimated at nearly $200,000, the state will put up approximately $100,000. This notification followed a recent communication from this city, which said that the remainder of the cost would be paid by the city of Newport Beach and the county of Orange.

the God of his fathers, 'He restoreth my soul.'

"There is a renewing grace in worship. You feel the presence of the unseen, and it brings a new confidence in yourself, new courage, new initiative. That is one of the great effects of religion to despondent people in a crowded world. 'Second, religion teaches us how to live. The Christian religion insists that we are not to let ourselves be mastered by things we own, but to be masters of them. Jesus taught us that the life of an individual or of a nation is not to be judged by the abundance of the things which it possesses. The possession of machines ought to be an unmitigated blessing to the human race. I believe we can make it so if we learn to use it rightly.

"Also, religion gives us a vision of the better environment in which will not dwarf personality or depress our souls, and in which not profits but utility is the goal. Religion gives us a vision of what Jesus called the kingdom of God, and strength to build it. As Dr. Nixon tells us, we learn from Jesus to distinguish between the trends with which we may ally ourselves and the trends which we must oppose."

"Also, meeting together to seek God we come in contact with a grace which goes out to our needs and gives power to seek the kingdom of righteousness, peace and joy."

Beach Rummage Sale Nets $250

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 8.—More than $250 was obtained by the Newport Beach Ebull club in proceeds from the rummage sale conducted under its auspices recently. It was reported today by Mrs. F. D. Lewis, chairman of the club's special rummage sale committee.

From the proceeds, $100 was donated to the auxiliary of the Newport harbor post of the American Legion, probably to be used in aiding disabled veterans. Another $100 was contributed to the Orange county health camp, and $25 more to the cause of crippled children.

This was the ninth sale conducted by the Ebull club, and for the last four years Mrs. Lewis' committee, consisting of herself, Mrs. W. W. Crozier, Mrs. George Conklin and Mrs. P. J. Wilson, has functioned in this way, raising a total of $1650.

Bazaar Planned

TUSTIN, Dec. 8.—The Missionary society of the Advent Christian church will hold a bazaar Friday, December 12, in Mr. Tufton's building opposite the post office. The sale will start at 10 a. m. Fancywork, rugs, quilts and cooked food will be offered.

BIBLE TOPIC OF FULLERTON PASTOR SUNDAY

FULLERTON, Dec. 8.—"Bible Sunday" was observed at the First Baptist church in Fullerton, when the Rev. Francis E. Hawes used as the subject for his morning sermon, "The Book of Books."

The Bible is composed of 66 books with two main divisions, the Old Testament has 39 books and the New Testament 27. These 66 books are the work of more than 40 authors. There were 53 different languages and cover a period of 1500 years. The themes discussed are as wide and varied as life itself.

Bible One Book
"Yet the Bible is one book. There is perfect harmony throughout. From Genesis to Revelations there is not a discordant note. The stones of the building of Solomon's temple were quarried, cut and carved many miles from the temple site, yet when the temple was erected, each stone fit perfectly into its place. So it was with the books of the Bible. Written by many different men, in different languages and in different ages, when brought together they fit perfectly into each other making one complete book."

"The great theme of the Bible is Jesus Christ. This is true of both the Old and New Testaments. The unity of the written word is based on the unity of the living word. Every book in the Bible throbs with the person and presence of Jesus Christ. To take Him from the Bible would be like taking the sun from the sky."

World's Best Seller
"The Bible is the most popular book of the day. The world is coming to realize the fact more and more. There was a day when it could be purchased only in book stores. Now you can get it at almost any store. It is the most eagerly sought of any book. It is still the world's best seller. It has been translated in whole or in part into 886 languages. During the past 10 years some part of it has been translated into a new language at the rate of one in every five weeks. The whole Bible has been translated into 171 languages, and the entire New Testament into 164 more. Last year, the American Bible society issued more Bibles than in any year of its history. For the past five years the output has increased over the preceding year. Since the first Bible was printed, 740,000,000 copies have been issued."

For All Races
"The Bible is inspired as no other book was ever inspired. Its own claim is 'All Scripture is given by inspiration of God.' 2 Tim. 3:16. 'Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost,' 2 Pet. 1:21. Four theories of inspiration are held by as many different schools. They are (1) the nationalistic theory. This theory teaches that the Bible is purely a human product with no supernatural element; (2) the partial theory. Advocates of this theory claim that certain parts of the Bible are inspired and other parts are not. Each student must decide for himself. This attitude breaks down all authority and makes for chaos; (3) the gracious theory. The teaching of this theory is that the writers were inspired the same as men are inspired today only in a larger degree; (4) the last and the one that I hold personally is verbal inspiration. This belief is that the very words themselves are inspired. There is a great body of Scripture to sustain this belief."

Reasons For Study
"May I mention seven reasons for Bible study: (1) Christ's example, Luke 4:17, Matt. 4:1-11; (2) Christ's commands, John 5:39, 2 Tim. 2:15; (3) the Bible reveals the way of salvation, Romans 1:16; (4) the Bible is a lamp and a light for life and death, Psalms 119:105, 130; (5) the Bible study prevents one from straying, Psalms 37:31, 119:11; (6) the Bible meets human needs. There is a message for every age and condition; (7) the Bible describes our future home, John 14:1-6, Rev. 21:1-4, 22:1-5."

PILES

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak, the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonard's prescription has a wonderful record of success in this city and McCon Drug Store, 1000 Broadway, Santa Ana, California, has the honor of selling the genuine HEM-ROID. It does not end all Pile misery.—Adv.

Oil Drilling Slated For Mesa Land

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 8.—While plans are being made for increasing the capacity of the oil refinery in West Newport, new oil leases of 200 acres of land northwest of this city owned by the Banning estate were reported today.

One shallow well is going in and others will follow, it is said. It is expected that asphaltum will be encountered, and this product will go to the local refinery, which has large orders on hand for road oils and all kinds of asphaltum from Honolulu, New Zealand and many places along the Pacific coast, according to R. M. Thomas, manager. Thomas also said that bids will soon be called on a new system expected to eliminate bad orders from the refinery, about which complaints have been made at various times to the city council.

HARBOR GRADE SCHOOLS SHOW BIG INCREASE

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 8.—While the new Newport harbor union high school is operating with more than 200 students, a large increase in attendance of pupils at both the Newport Beach and Costa Mesa grammar schools has taken place this term, according to figures announced today at the schools. The total increased attendance at both high and elementary schools is almost 50 per cent.

A new grammar school is already being built in North Costa Mesa to take care of the students of that section and relieve the crowded Mesa school, and H. O. Ensign, principal of the Newport Beach school, says that either a new school or an addition must soon be built here.

Costa Mesa grammar school now has 644 students, a gain of about 150 over a year ago, while the Newport school has 315, as against 265 last year.

Vacations at the beach elementary schools commence December 17 and end Monday, January 5. Christmas trees and programs are being arranged at both schools, the date of the Newport event being set for December 16.

Quickest Way To Knock a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way
You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It
If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

LEAGUE'S AIMS DISCUSSED AT CHURCH DINNER

Professor Paul Demare, Anaheim teacher, and R. R. Lutes of the Orange County Law Enforcement league were speakers at the combined meeting of the Yorba Linda branch of the league and the Yorba Linda brotherhood at a dinner meeting held at the Methodist church Friday evening.

Demare spoke on the problem of young people and what the government can do for them. They are well taken care of along mental and physical lines, with splendid schools and athletic training, but the third phase of education, the moral side, is neglected, he said.

Lutes spoke on the organization of the Law Enforcement league, its purpose and aims, discussing at length the need of teaching scientific temperance instruction in the schools, and the necessity for organizing the drys for concerted action.

J. H. Barton, president of the local league, spoke on the need of a peace officer in unincorporated districts, as did F. W. Stahler of the chamber of commerce, who stated that they were advised to organize throughout the county and present the matter to the grand jury.

Mrs. M. E. Martin and Mrs. Willets Van Cleave were in charge of the dinner, which was attended by 35 people. J. A. Logsdon presided at the business meeting. The next meeting will be held at the Friends social hall January 2.

Editor, Santa Ana Register.

Sir:—

I am sorry to see you big people fumbling and stumbling over these "economic depressions" sometimes known as the unemployment question.

In Monday's edition some one voiced the need of economic statesmen and said "It seems so foolish that in a country of adequate resources, with ample capital and equipment, with men willing to work and consume, that such distress should exist. We do not presume to have the wisdom to suggest a plan but such a plan could be worked out by men who understand economic laws" and etc.

That is about the stand I took years ago though I did think—would be absolutely necessary if we ever decided to do anything an honorable way, without ancient charity.

I wanted some statesman or editor to help me out, but my confidence in such people has diminished and changed so much I can hardly recognize it myself. If we establish state employment offices exclusively and elect a congress and president pledged to support jobs for all unemployed on useful and necessary public works, we will have made a plan that will abolish war and poverty the world over!

In such an election we will need every patriotic editor in the country and sacred dollars. Less majesty and sacrilege will be forms of speech not allowed. Old prosperity has been around the corner too long. I hope most of the people have cricks in their necks looking for him. We have got to make him look for us, and if he finds us with money to spend we'll enjoy the laugh about his latest hoax.

I would like to publish a letter Edwin Markham sent me several years ago about voting a job for the unemployed. I begged the Oakland Tribune to publish it and if I could have kept the question before the people the present state of affairs would never have arrived. Of course it will take time to accomplish much, but the longer we wait the worse our fate and it may be too long.

Congress could coin or stamp money to pay for public works without confiscating property by unreasonable taxation and the improvements and money also would still belong to Uncle Sam, but of course there are lots of people would rather Uncle Sam would borrow the money, but I want to see how this strikes the editor.

Respectfully,

visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Roberson, Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Graham entertained as recent dinner guests in their home, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lyons and two daughters, of Puente, and their son, Riley Graham, of Long Beach.

WILL HE UPSET DOPE AGAIN?

Urban Hernandez, popular Placentia lightweight, will be the underdog again tonight when he meets Joe Galvis in a main event at the Orange County Athletic club. Nevertheless, Ralph Pantusso's classy protégé looks capable of upsetting the dope just as he did in his match here with Young Papke. Galvis holds a win over Papke, too.

DONALD KENNEDY, 12, MAKES HOLE-IN-ONE AT GOLF CLUB

Hailed as the youngest golfer ever to score a hole-in-one in Orange county, Donald Kennedy, 12, son of the club's popular president, Rex Kennedy, was the toast of the Santa Ana Country club today.

Master Kennedy rolled his tee shot into the cup on Hole No. 2 as pretty as you please yesterday while playing with "Chick" Shields, son of Hugh Shields.

The feat was witnessed and attested both by W. Maxwell Burke, Santa Ana attorney, and A. F. LeGaye, who were putting on the seventh green which is close to No. 2.

Donald used a No. 6 iron for his hole-in-one which was the twenty-second registered on the Newport boulevard course. Others to make aces are G. B. Shattuck, Z. B. West, Jr., A. W. Ruston, C. E. Parker, M. B. Lacy, Miss Enid Twist, R. E. Dye, Paul Williams, W. C. Fletcher, J. S. Warner (three times, twice official); Van Pomeroy, G. A. Parker, T. F. McGilvray, B. V. Curry, Gene Fensolen, L. W. Bemis, Gordon Talbert, Judge G. K. Scovel, E. K. Gerhardt and Art May.

His ace helped young Mr. Kennedy to a 94 for his 18-hole round.

TROY ROUT THRILLS EAST Hernandez, Galvis Collide Tonight

PLACENTIA BOY IS SHORTENDER IN DELHI BOUT

Again on the short end of the odds but considered a sweet "shortender" just the same, Urban Hernandez, Placentia's fighting gamecock, crawls into the firing pit here tonight for eight rounds, or less, of big time mauling with Joe Galvis, a splendid Filipino lightweight who has been in top spots both at the Olympic and Hollywood in recent weeks.

Lower prices will be in effect at the Orange County Athletic club for the card. "Tons" tonight will be $1.50 for ringside seats, according to H. T. Foust who is associated with the Orange County 40 at 5 in promotion of south-side matches.

Joe Guerrero, undisputed Mexican lightweight champion of the Pacific Coast, holder of the gold belt for beating Johnny Lamar for the title at Hollywood, will be an interested spectator.

No doubt the rapid rise of Hernandez is the real reason for Guerrero's visit, but while the big city must deliver the goods in double packages before they get an opportunity to show their wares at the two big clubs in Los Angeles.

Ralph Pantusso, manager of Hernandez, though he had clear sailing for his boy when Urban laced Young Papke three weeks ago, but before getting the "big time" start, Hernandez was told that he must also score over Galvis, the Filipino flash, and the only other fighter that ever defeated Papke. The winner of this is assured a crack at some real top notch fighter uptown.

Tony Moreno, stablemate of Hernandez, has been promised a main event if he beats Joe Rey, stablemate of Galvis, in tonight's six-round semi-final, at 134 pounds, but what a job the Placentia boy has on his hands.

Indian ("Kid") Crow gets the same opportunity if he beats Cliff Burrill of Santa Ana, in another six-round bout at 133 pounds.

Ray Leonard Acosta, Mexican middleweight, is another that deserves a top spot if he beats Al Marina, of San Francisco, in another six at 155 pounds.

Luis Echiveste keeps filling in the four round spots and is satisfied if he can reverse a decision he lost to Emil Jure, San Bernardino, when they met in the four-round opener at 124 pounds.

Bay District Golf Tourney Big Success

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—Success of the first national match play open golf tournament, which Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente won in spectacular manner yesterday, encouraged decision today that the midwinter feature will become an annual event for San Francisco.

The tournament, which was unique as the inaugural open to be decided by match play and as the first major golf event promoted for this city, attracted a tremendous gallery as Diegel defeated Al Esposito, of Chicago, six up and four to play.

NOTRE DAME IS CONCEDED U. S. GRIDIRON TITLE

BY COPELAND C. BURG (I.N.S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Like a red string tightly binding a Christmas box, the fiery wizardry of Knute Rockne today wrapped itself around the 1930 football package as Notre Dame was acknowledged national football champion.

And out there in Los Angeles Coach Howard Jones' young men and a stunned citizenship will forever believe that there is something super-natural in the man from South Bend who descended on them Saturday with a magician's bag of tricks that left them gasping in their seats. The next time a Southern Californian bumps into the Notre Dame coach and doesn't see rabbits and doves kicking and fluttering out of his hat they'll just say he is sulking and refusing to do his act.

Trojans Mesmerized Indeed as the Ramblers humiliated the Trojans 27 to 0 it did appear that they were seven-league boots, magic belts and wishing caps, the ensemble traveling hither and yon on a magic carpet as Frank Carideo shouted his hocus pocus and cast about some mystic powder that mesmerized the coast players. They turned the dictionary upside down today searching for superlative adjectives to crown this team of super players which completed the hardest schedule in football history without a defeat.

Brilliant, marvelous and superb seemed pale indeed to describe an outfit greater than the Four Horsemen as it whirled onward past dazed Southern Methodist, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Drake, Northwestern, Army and finally Southern California.

And in the fall of the House of Troy, Rockne revealed a team of teams with seemingly enough sorcery and voodoo-like plays to confound any opponent. The swiftness and sureness of Rockne's air attack sent the Trojans back on their heels at the outset and they never recovered.

Carideo Like Napoleon As predicted Carideo was a Napoleonic field general. Almost as though rubbing an Aladdin's lamp before each play, he wished for just the right thing and he got it. With a deftness that must have been sickening to his opponents, Carideo moved about his team—always a good team but Saturday one that played as though inspired, bewitched and casting an evil eye that put a jinx on every inch of that California turf.

The Trojans were outclassed in every department of the game and some of them, selected by many for All-American honors, were cast in tragic roles as they attempted to stop the nomads. Southern California got small solace out of that game but if it helps any we might point out that University of California editor was all wrong. He said most of the Trojans were professional players.

Irish Real Champions Notre Dame ended the season with 19 victories in a row and is one of three 1930 major teams undefeated. Alabama and Washington, who meet in Pasadena on New Year's day, are the other two, but even though some Southern gentleman or a husky from the north

HARVESTS HARDWARE HEAP

Charles Keppen doesn't run an athletic "hardware" store; he's merely the athletic director of the Los Angeles Athletic club, national champions of practically everything sponsored by the A. A. U. The trophies displayed by Keppen are those signifying national titles in men's and women's swimming, gymnastics, track and field, and what have you.

Irish Extend Victories To 19 In String

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Notre Dame's two-year undefeated football record includes 19 straight victories. The Irish started the string in the first game of the 1929 season after losing the last game in 1928 to Southern California, 27-14.

This is not the longest string of straight games won by Notre Dame as the Irish compiled 20 straight victories in 1919, 1920 and 1921, losing the third game of the latter season to Howard Jones' Iowa team, 10-7.

IRISH VICTORY SLAP AT COCKY COAST-CORUM

BY BILL CORUM (I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—California may recover from what Rockne and his Raiders did to it Saturday, but surely it will never talk the same.

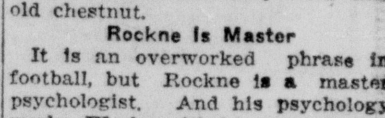

For a long time now we have had to suffer the yolk of far-western football superiority in silence. No more, whatever happens after this all we folks east of the Mississippi will have to say is: "Remember Notre Dame and 1930."

That will hold 'em. It was one of those upsets which are made to order. Southern California had slaughtered California and licked the tar out of Stanford. They were so hot that they were being accused in certain sections of California as being professionals, and after the California holocaust some college editor at Berkeley came out with the statement that they had just been defeated by "the best professional team in America."

Corum Cured Then, what did Knute do but go out there and steal the Trojans' wooden horses and gallop it around before their amazed eyes.

On the representations and urgent advice of friends on the coast, I went nook, line and sinker on the lads from Los Angeles, but it was worth the anguish of being made to look a complete sucker just to see the far-westerners take a lacing they have had coming for a long time.

Not, you understand, that I have anything against Californians. They are fine folks. But they really were beginning to believe that better football was played out there than in any other part of the United States, and the truth is not in that belief. No section, or no institution, has a monopoly on good football.

and if you were to put Notre Dame in with Alabama this coming week-end, it's no 5 to 5 that the Irish wouldn't have to dip, in turn, their own banners.

With all respect to King Knute, as they are calling him, the Trojans must have been pretty hammy. Any football team that can't break up a lateral pass has to be hammy, and time after time the white shirts were made to look silly with this old chestnut.

Rockne Is Master It is an overworked phrase in football, but Rockne is a master psychologist. And his psychology works. Works with his own players and also the opposing teams.

Take this California game. Knute had everybody in the country, and particularly the Californians, believing that his Irish were due to be snowed under. In every possible way he made it look as though this was just an ordinary team that had been lucky to escape defeat.

Then, when he got there and the Trojans were properly coddled, he cut loose and showed them how the game should be played.

But in sending Rockne to the head of the coaches' class, it is no more than fair to point out that he has much the best of it in the conditions under which his teams are picked and trained. I am not referring so much to the fact that football is the all-year and almost the only sport at Notre Dame, which it is. But to the almost unlimited time Knute and his assistant coaches have to spend with individual players.

Consider Carideo. Carideo has spent at least one and perhaps two summers in Warner's class Rockne's coaching school. He has heard gridding strategy and tactics morning, noon and night until he is a walking encyclopedia of the game. Scant wonder, then, that he pulls few boners on the field. Why should he?

539,000 See Ramblers In Nine Games

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Notre Dame's undefeated football team drew a total attendance of approximately 539,000 and gate receipts of about $1,907,000 in 10 games during the 1930 season, according to figures compiled today by the United Press.

The crowds at the three final games against Northwestern, Army and Southern California were restricted by seating capacity of the stadiums. Tickets for the Northwestern and Southern California games were exhausted more than a week before the games.

Twice Notre Dame played to almost half million dollar galleries. Approximately 110,000 tickets were sold at $4 to the Army game, and 90,000 tickets were sold at $5 each to the Southern California game. The average price of tickets to the other eight games was $3. Tickets to the Navy game were $5 but some of the ducats to the Pittsburgh and other games were as low as $1.50.

The estimated attendance at each game follows: Southern Methodist at South Bend, 22,000; Navy at South Bend, 45,000; Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, 75,000; Indiana at South Bend, 15,000; Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, 80,000; Drake at South Bend, 20,000; Northwestern at Evanston, 50,000; Army at Chicago, 110,000; Southern California at Los Angeles, 90,000; totals, 539,000.

SPEARS DENIES PLAN TO LEAVE OREGON SCHOOL

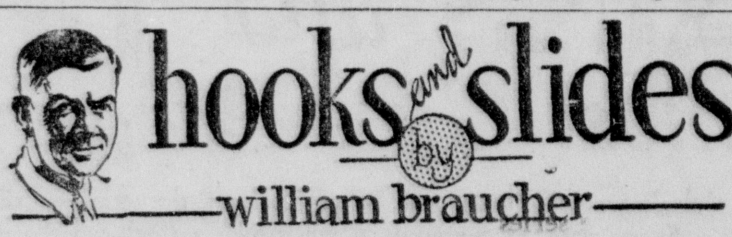

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Reports that Dr. Clarence Spears was not satisfied with his berth as Oregon university football coach and that he was considering an offer to go to the University of California at Berkeley were denied by Spears here today.

"My contract with Oregon has a long time to run," Spears said, "and so far as I know I'll be back there."

"However, if Oregon was not satisfied with me I'd allow the contract to be broken and if I was not satisfied I believe Oregon would permit me to break it."

"I'm satisfied and I expect to be back at Oregon, I know" nothing about any offer to me from California.

Spears is here attending the Pacific Coast conference annual schedule-making session.

A TIP TO DAPPER JACK We are just a trifle concerned about Jack Kearns. The other day Jack sent out a bulletin to the boys, stating in effect that even the date of the Mickey Walker-Max Schmeling match for next year had been set.

Oh, yes, May 31, 1931, at Soldiers' field! To which our only comment at this time will be that May 31 happens to fall on Sunday.

HORWEEN GOES BACK Arnold Horween, Harvard's coach, returns to the tannery in Chicago, his work for the year done well in beating Yale. No more, says he, will he coach the Crimson.

I think Yale will agree that Horween is in the right business in Chicago. Considering that the Bulldog was pretty thoroughly tanned this year, and last year, and the year before that.

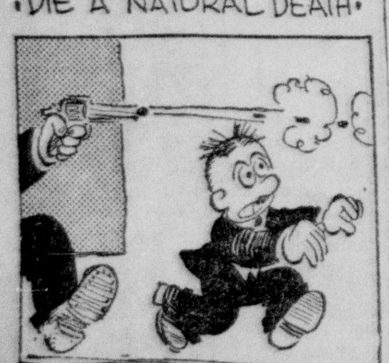

POINT AFTER TOUCHDOWN Football is a game that gets its name from the practice of kicking a leather-covered sphere. Naturally, you kick with your feet. Aside from punting and booting field goals, the try for point after touchdown is the only kicking you see in a football game these days, aside from kicking ribs, etc.

Success in kicking the point after touchdown often brings a team victory. It is a department of the game. If they do away with kicking (I mean the football) why call it football? Is it not important that skill in kicking be retained?

HUNK ANDERSON TRAINS "Hunk" Anderson, hard-hitting Notre Dame guard of 1921, and assistant to Rockne, went into training for that Thanksgiving morning battle between veterans of Northwestern and Notre Dame teams. Training, of course, involved cessation of smoking. Hunk acquiesced.

PITCHER'S MARRIAGE BY L. A. DEPUTY SHERIFF QUESTIONED

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Elaine Hammond Gramp, 18, asked Superior Judge B. Roy Schauer today to decide whether she is married to Henry Gramp Jr., major league baseball player.

In appealing for an annulment, she told Judge Schauer she was married to the Chicago Cub pitcher in Tijuana, Mexico, last April 6 by a Los Angeles deputy sheriff. J. V. Taylor, a jeweler, who held a "courtesy" deputy sheriff badge, told Judge Schauer he "performed the ceremony while we were all

The Scarab Murder Case

A PHILO VANCE STORY BY S. S. VAN DINE

Philo Vance, scholar and detective, is the first person to hear of the murder of Benjamin H. Kyle, philanthropist, who is found by Donald Scarlett, assistant to Dr. Bliss, curator of the Bliss museum of Egyptology. Kyle's body is discovered by Scarlett just before 10 o'clock in the morning. That the murder has been committed with a statue of the Egyptian god of vengeance is a fact ascertained by Vance when he goes with Scarlett and the district attorney, Markham, to the scene of the murder.

Scarlett tells Vance that he has been engaged in placing a second collection of treasures from the tomb of an Egyptian ruler, Intef V, in the museum—that Dr. Bliss lives in rooms connecting with the museum—that Kyle lives in an adjoining house similar to the two which have been remodeled into a museum—that Kyle became interested in Egyptology through his nephew, Salvator, who lives with Dr. and Mrs. Bliss. Other members of the household are Hani, an Egyptian, who is drinking his morning coffee, and Mrs. Bliss herself, part Egyptian, Brush the butler and Dinkie, the cook.

A blue acetate set in a stick pin is found near the dead man and a paper on which calculations for a second expedition to the tomb of Intef were made by Dr. Bliss, and who alone had possession of it, is also found under Kyle's hand. Faint tracks of blood made by tennis shoes of the sort known to have been worn by Bliss, lead to the living quarters of the curator. Sergeant Heath of the Homicide squad believes that the evidence is obvious but Vance declares it is too obvious.

Hani arrives on the scene, is questioned and declares that the murder is the work of the gods and points to the fact that Kyle is prostrated in an attitude of supplication before the statue of the god of the underworld, Dr. Bliss is visited and is aroused from a deep sleep into which he declares he fell after drinking his morning coffee. He says the scarab and the paper were both in his possession the night before when he met with Kyle, Scarlett and Salvator to discuss plans for a second expedition to the tomb of Intef.

Mrs. Bliss, who has been out on an errand since 9 o'clock, returns and finds Kyle dead, her husband in despair and declaring that without Kyle his life's work cannot go on. Salvator, the nephew of the dead man who has also been away from the house returns. Salvator meets Vance in Egypt but his surprise at seeing him and at finding his uncle dead, does not seem to ring true. Vance has investigated the place where Scarlett says he placed the statue of Sakhmet, the god of vengeance, the night before. He finds something where the statue stood.

Salvator returns at 1:15 p. m. from the errand which took him away from the Bliss home at 9 o'clock. He is questioned by Vance and declares that he has been kept waiting at the Metropolitan Art Museum which, with his journey to and from the place, accounts for his four hours' absence.

Markham and Heath express impatience to know what Vance has discovered on the ledge where the statue stood.

"I'm merely delving into the subtler possibilities of this investigation," he replied, in an offhand manner. "I'm a complex soul, Markham old dear. I don't, alas! possess a simple, forthright nature. I'm a sworn enemy of the obvious and the trite. . . . You remember what the heart of the young man said to the Psalmist?—'Things are not what they seem.'"

Markham had long since come to understand this kind of evasive garrulousness on Vance's part, and no further question was asked. Moreover, there was an interruption at this moment, which was to place an even more complicated and more sinister aspect on the entire case.

The front door was opened by Hennessey, and Captain Dubois and Detective Bellamy, the fingerprint experts, clattered down the stairs.

"Sorry to keep you waiting, Sergeant," Dubois said, shaking hands with Heath; "but I was tied up with a safe-breaking job on Fulton Street." He looked about him. "How'd ye do, Mr. Markham?" He extended his hand to the District Attorney. . . . "And Mr. Vance, is it?" Dubois spoke civilly but without enthusiasm; I believe his tiff with Vance during the "Canary" murder case still rankled in him.

"There ain't much of a job for you here, Captain," Heath interrupted impatiently. "The only thing I want you to check up on is that black statue laying there."

Dubois at once became seriously professional.

"That won't take long," he muttered, bending over the diorite figure of Sakhmet. "What might it be, Sergeant?—one of those Futurist works of art that don't mean anything?"

"It don't mean anything to me," the Sergeant growled, "unless you can find some nice identifiable prints on it."

Dubois grunted and snapped his fingers toward his assistant, Bellamy, who had stood imperturbably in the background during the exchange of greetings, came ponderously forward and opened a black hand-bag which he had brought with him. Dubois, using a large handkerchief and the palms of his hands, carefully lifted the statue and placed it upright on the seat of a chair. Then he reached in the hand-bag and took out an insufflator, or tiny hand-bellows, and puffed a fine pale-saffron powder over the entire figure. Following this operation, he gently blew away all the surplus powder, and fixing a jeweler's glass in his eye, knelt down and made a close inspection of every part of the statue.

Hani had watched the performance with the keenest interest. He had slowly moved toward the fingerprint men until now he stood within a few feet of them. His eyes were concentrated on their labors, and his hands, which hung at his sides, were tightly flexed.

"You'll find no finger-prints of mine on Sakhmet, gentlemen," he proclaimed in a low, tense voice. "I polished them off. . . . Nor will there be any fingerprints to guide you. The Goddess of Vengeance strikes of her own volition and power, and no human hands are needed to assist her in her acts of justice."

Heath threw the Egyptian a glance of scathing contempt; but Vance turned in his direction with a considerable show of interest.

"How do you know, Hani," he asked, "that your sign-manuals will not appear on the statue? It was you who placed it upon the cabinet yesterday."

"Yes, effendi," the man answered, without taking his eyes from Dubois. "I placed it there—but with reverence. I rubbed and polished it from top to bottom when it was unpacked. And then I took it in my hands and stood it on the top of the cabinet, as Bliss effendi had directed. But when it was in place I could see where my hands had made marks upon its polished surface; and again I rubbed it with a chamol cloth so that it would be pure and untouched while the spirit of Sakhmet looked down sorrowfully over the stolen treasures of this room. . . . There was no mark or print on it when I left it."

"Well, my friend, there's finger-prints on it now," declared Dubois unemotionally. He had taken out a powerful magnifying glass and was centering his gaze on the thick ankles of the statue. "And they're damn clear prints, too. . . . Looks to me like they'd been made by some guy who'd lifted up this statue. . . . Both hands show around the ankles. . . . Pass me the camera, Bellamy."

Bliss had paid scant heed to the entrance of the fingerprint men, but when Hani had begun to speak he had roused himself from his despondent lethargy and concentrated his attention on the Egyptian. Then, when Dubois had announced the presence of fingerprints, he had stared, with terrible intensity, at the statue. A startling change had come over him. He was like a man in the grip of some consuming fear; and before Dubois had finished speaking he leapt to his feet and stood in a frozen attitude of stark horror.

"God help me!" he cried; and the sound of his voice sent a chill over me. "Those are my fingerprints on that statue!"

The effect of this admission was dumbfounding. Even Vance seemed momentarily shaken out of his habitual calm, and going to a small standard ashtray he abstractedly crushed out his cigarette, though he had smoked less than half of it.

Heath was the first to break the electric silence that followed Bliss's cry of anguish. He took his dead cigar from his lips, and thrust out his chin.

"Sure, they're your fingerprints!" he snapped unpleasantly. "Who else's would they be?"

"Just a moment, Sergeant!" Vance had wholly recovered himself, and his voice was casual. "Finger-prints can be very misleading, don't y' know. And a few diabolical signatures on a lethal weapon don't mean that their author is necessarily a murderer. It's most important, d' ye see, to ascertain when and under what circumstances the signatures were made."

He approached Bliss, who had remained staring at the statue of Sakhmet like a stricken man.

"I say, doctor,"—he had assumed an easy, offhand manner—"how do you know those finger-prints are yours?"

"How do I know?" Bliss repeated the question in a resigned, colorless tone. He appeared to have make sure that everything was in order for his inspection. . . . You see, Mr. Vance, a great deal depended on the impression the new treasures made on him. . . . I looked over the items in that cabinet, and then re-drew the curtain. Just as I was about to depart I noticed that the statue of Sakhmet had not been placed evenly on the top of the cabinet—it was not in the exact center, and was slightly sideways. So I reached up and straightened it—taking hold of it by the ankles."

"Pardon me for intruding, Vance,"—Scarlett, a troubled look on his face, had stepped forward—"but I haven't got any witnesses. And it's the sort of alibi any one would pull when they'd got caught with the goods."

Markham diplomatically intervened. He himself was patently not dare leave anything out of place; he's constantly criticizing us and rearranging things after us."

Vance nodded.

"Then, as I understand you, Scarlett, if a statue was left a bit askew, it would be practically inevitable that Doctor Bliss, on seeing it, would set it right."

"Yes—I think that's a reasonable conclusion."

"Many thanks," Vance turned again to Bliss. "Your explanation is that you adjusted the statue of Sakhmet, by taking hold of its ankles, and forth-with went to bed?"

"That's the truth—so help me God!" The man searched Vance's eyes eagerly. "I turned out the lights and went up-stairs. And I've not set foot in the museum till you knocked on my study door."

Heath was obviously not satisfied with this story. It was plain that he had no intention of relinquishing his belief in Bliss's guilt.

"The trouble with that alibi," he retorted doggedly, "is that you haven't got any witnesses. And it's the sort of alibi any one would pull when they'd got caught with the goods."

Markham diplomatically intervened. He himself was patently not convinced one way or the other.

"I think, Sergeant," he said, "that it might be advisable to have Captain Dubois verify the identity of the finger-prints. We'll at least know definitely then if the prints are the ones Doctor Bliss made. . . . Can you do that now, Captain?"

"Sure thing."

Dubois reached in the hand-bag and drew forth a tiny inked roller, a narrow glass slab, and a small paper pad.

"I guess the thumbs'll be enough," he said. "There's only one set of hands showing on the statue."

He ran the inked roller over the glass slab, and going to Bliss, asked him to hold out his hands.

"Press your thumbs on the ink and then put 'em down on this paper," he ordered.

Bliss complied without a word; and when the impressions had been made Dubois again placed the jeweler's glass in his eye and inspected the marks.

"Looks like 'em," he commented. "Unlar loops—same like those on the statue. . . . Anyhow, I'll check 'em."

He knelt down beside the statue and held the pad close to its ankles. For a minute so he studied the two sets of finger-prints.

"They match," he announced at length. "No doubt about it. . . . And there ain't another visible mark on the statue. This gentleman"—he gestured contemptuously toward Bliss—"is the only person who's laid hands on the statue, so far as I can see."

"That's bully with me," grinned Heath. "Let me have the enlargements as soon as you can—I got a feeling I'm going to need 'em." He took out a fresh cigar and bit the end off with glowing satisfaction. "I guess that'll be all, Captain. Many thank. . . . Now you can go and vidual up."

And every day, during all the years to come, she can depend upon this same splendid service from her Christmas range.

Think it over; talk it over. Remember, it will cost you less in immediate outlay than even a quite ordinary gift might. And it will mean more than almost any other gift could. Then come in, select your range, let your dealer or Edison office know when you wish it installed, and your biggest Christmas gift problem will have been solved, most pleasingly.

Addresses Heard Yesterday In Santa Ana Churches

BEACH PASTOR GIVES TALK ON SPIRITUAL AGE

The pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Huntington Beach, the Rev. John M. Barnhart, preached yesterday morning on "Your Spiritual Age." He spoke in part as follows:

"The Christian life begins as a beautiful tender babe who either dies early, ceases to develop, or grows continually. What will happen to the babe depends upon the attitude of mind of the newly converted toward God. For that reason Paul exhorted the Philippians brethren, 'Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God who worketh in you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.'"

"It is a sad truth that the babe too often dies. Infant mortality in the spiritual realm is quite as common as in the physical. Jesus has warned the beginner that the seed that springs up on shallow ground, where the conviction is not very deep, soon withers and dies. He also reminds us that too much time devoted to business, daily cares or pleasures will cause the babe to die through neglect. Infant mortality in this illustration, is due to undernourishment—too little devotional study of the Bible, too little reading of the religious press, books and tracts, too little meditation upon the vital doctrines of religion, that is to say spiritual vitamins are lacking. Then too the babe is actually poisoned. He feeds on false standards of life made palatable by fine literary style. Reading that does not leave the mind more pure and clean, that does not create a longing for high ideals and an eager desire to follow the noblest example, that does not give a more intense hatred for sin and a stronger love for the sinner, that does not sensitize the conscience, is poison that will sooner or later destroy the babe's life."

"We have the stunted babe in the church. He is always suffering from some form of colic. He cries, he complains, he kicks, he causes friction and even division. He gives grudgingly, serves for praise of men, and refuses to do anything unless constantly petted and pampered. He has never been weaned and must have the milk bottle regularly. The milk must be the right temperature and contain a mild opiate. Such are exhorted to leave the first principles and press on unto perfection. In other words the babe has ceased to develop."

"But a goodly number of babes do not die, and do not cease to develop, but continually grow in clearness of thought, in wideness of vision, in broadness of sympathy, in magnanimity as God designs. 'Love abounds more and more in knowledge and in all discernment. They approve the things that are excellent and are sincere. They are filled with the fruits of righteousness through Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.'"

"The growing process continues

IMPORTANCE OF CRUCIFIXION OF JESUS STRESSED SUNDAY IN SERMON BY DR. CECIL AKER

Asserting that there is too much emphasis placed on the birth of Christ and not enough on the importance of His death, and declaring that if there had been no cross on Calvary for the Master there would have been no reason for the manger cradle in Bethlehem, Dr. Cecil M. Aker, pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church spoke yesterday on "Christmas and the Cross." His text was "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ," Gal. 6:14. He spoke in part as follows:

"The tendency today is to emphasize unduly the influence of the life of Christ upon our lives and to under-emphasize the importance of His death in our behalf. We are often told that we are saved by His life rather than by His death. Much is made of His incarnation and little of the atonement. The story of His birth stirs us and thrills us, but often there is cold indifference toward His death upon the cross. We are very fond of Christmas but have little use for Good Friday."

"There are many who think that it is quite a far in our Christmas festivities to have our communion day happen in December. It is like a shocking experience related by an English clergyman who tells of an incident on a certain wedding day. An hour before the wedding the mother of the bride received the news that her only son had been killed at the front. The mother could not be consoled except by having the organist first play the dirge before the wedding march. So it might be said with observing communion at the beginning of Christmas holidays."

"But not so with the Apostle Paul and the writers of the New Testament. The joy and good cheer which we lavish on Christmas, they seem to have felt as they thought of the death of Christ. In fact, the birth of Christ plays a rather insignificant part in the Gospels and none at all in the Epistles. The thing that the writers of the New Testament especially delight in is the death of Christ on the cross. It was this that Paul gloried in."

"One reason for this joy and good cheer over the death of Christ which Paul and the other New Testament writers manifest was because it revealed to them as nothing else could God's estimate of sin. There were many false doctrines about sin and some still are abroad in the world. It is often sneered at as of no consequence. But such a view of sin has no standing in the light of the cross. It takes something more heroic than physical remedies, educational programs and legislative enactments to solve the sin problem. Nothing less heroic than the death of Christ on the cross could break its power over human life."

"Then too, the death of Christ unveiled the Father's heart as nothing else could. It shows us that God is not only like a Father but that He is a Father in His essential nature. 'God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself.'"

"It was the death of Christ also that gives us an insight into the real worth of each human being. In the light of the cross there are no ordinary folks. It makes social service a delight. It also gives us a new insight into the possibilities wrapped up in this human life. After all what gives Christmas its joy and good cheer is the light that beams from Calvary. Without Calvary's cross there could have been no Bethlehem manger."

because they retain the spirit of youth which looks into the future, accepts challenge, takes risk, launches out on the sea of endeavor to accomplish greater things for God and the advancement of the kingdom. 'Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit.'"

EVERS MAN IS LIMITED ONLY BY OWN SELF

The question "Is Life Worth Living?" on which he lectured last night at the service of the National Federation Spiritual Science church, was answered by the Rev. Paul Andres by the declaration that such a question never enters the mind of the person who strives to do his best despite obstacles and failures and who constantly tries to make others happy.

"Man is limited by nothing except himself," the pastor asserted. "There are no limitations placed upon us except by ourselves. It is our fears, worries, doubts and anxieties that limit us. To yearn for truth opens the way to knowledge, but protection and guidance necessary. It is as essential to have instruction in spiritual unfoldment as in mathematics or physics."

"The first step is in mind training. Scattered thoughts are weakening and distraction is weakness of mind. Train your mind to concentrate and train your body to act in accordance. Make complete harmony between thought and action. You never work for anyone but yourself, no matter what you do. If you do more than you are paid for, the law of compensation will repay you. You slight only yourself when you neglect to perform your duty. Keep that which is best always uppermost in your mind and let the other go."

"Your duty is to do the best you can, and the law will repay you with interest. Do not mind what others say or do, for you will scatter your thoughts and lose. In service to others, life becomes full of happiness. Desire to know and obey. Live the life. Each must awaken the soul within themselves. To find the soul is to find life. This cannot be accomplished while living the brute life."

"God is love and love is a consuming fire because it consumes dross and transmutes that which is against us into that which is for us."

"Do not despair if you find yourself sometimes giving away to impulses before you are able to keep your balance and poise. The greatest of us find we are at times unable to hold the brakes. Do not get discouraged if you sometimes fail to keep yourself as you would like. Every time we fail we must build over again. Picture yourself a success, in success. Live with the best thoughts. Give the world the best you have and the best will be returned to you. This is a basic law—no matter how unjust things may seem."

"Jesus says, 'There is a way that seems right unto a man, but the end thereof is the way of death. He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.' The way to God and to heaven, demands solemn consideration."

"Stop! Look! Listen! Consider who, and what we are dealing with. We are dealing with God concerning holy things, and with our soul's best interest, here and hereafter. Thousands are killed on the railroad crossings because they do not obey the danger signals. So it is with all who rush on through life and fail to observe and obey God's danger signals. 'It is appointed unto man once to die and after that the judgment. Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. Repent and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out. The wicked shall be turned into hell and all the nations that forget God.' It behooves us all to stop, look, listen and obey God's word."

at times, there is a way in which this law will operate.

"Above all try to cultivate a cheerful magnetic temperament. Let those who come in contact with you feel that you cast off a ray of sunshine. The members of your family will notice it first, the one in whom you are mostly interested will feel the change and draw closer to you. Your friends, and even strangers, will want to associate with you."

"Be always ready with a hearty handshake, smile and cheerful, complimentary remark. These things cost you nothing, and the habit of doing them soon becomes a part of your nature. Thus the question, 'Is life worth living?' will not enter your mind."

Early Shopping Is Subject Of Hicks' Sermon

"Early Shopping" was the subject of the sermon preached last evening by the Rev. C. D. Hicks of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church. He took for his text "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." The sermon was particularly applied to the young people of the church.

"Shopping early" is a slogan now being applied to Christmas shopping, he said. "It is a very natural slogan and can be seen working out in every department of life. Those who do their Christmas shopping early have many advantages over those shopping later."

"This same principle is applicable to every walk of life and also in the field of nature. The Mocker many do, if you do more than you are paid for, the law of compensation will repay you. You slight only yourself when you neglect to perform your duty. Keep that which is best always uppermost in your mind and let the other go."

"We have all realized the importance of this slogan as applied to education. For that reason we have spent millions in building schools and universities and enacted compulsory education. This slogan as applied to the religious field is a most interesting one and provokes the most careful thinking. The wisest Christians shopper counts well his money to be spent, then considers carefully the articles he wishes to buy."

"The text of the meeting is appealing to the young man who has his life and strength to spend, to invest it in the cause of his Creator. This life and strength must be invested somewhere. And it is just a question as to where it will bring the best returns."

SCHOOL CEREMONY DATE SET

NEWPORT HEIGHTS, Dec. 8.—Dedication of the new Newport harbor high school will take place January 3 instead of December 17, it is announced by Sidney H. Davidson, principal. The later date was chosen because the building and grounds will be in better condition then.

XMAS MUSIC IS GIVEN SUNDAY AT M. E. CHURCH

There was a colorful service at the First Methodist church yesterday morning when the choir rendered Christmas-spirit music and the minister, the Rev. Dr. George A. Warner, preached an informing sermon on the subject, "The Sources of Christianity." He said in part: "The roots of Christianity run back as far as the human mind can discover the emotions and experiences of the human race. In fact, as man is inextricably intertwined with the history of all animal development, so Christianity roots more deeply than has yet been understood. But roots are important only in so far as they can produce fruits. We do not judge the worth of aught by its roots but by its flower and its fruit."

"With an intimate understanding of the road over which all development has come, it is possible to assign certain immediate sources of the Christian movement. The first source is the Bible. The Bible is not a book, but a library. It was not written at one sitting by a single man but was penned by many men over almost as many centuries. Once the preaching concerning it was concerned with its surprising unity. Now, in the light of more facts, the emphasis is the story of its developing life. There is a scarlet thread of enlarging conception, enriching life, and social unfoldment running its entire length. The new scholarship, with the excavating spade, has made it possible to so rearrange the various manuscripts that the ascending order of the life-ladder can be completely constructed. Crude beginnings are laid bare. Many experimental wanderings are revealed. But the fruitage in Jesus, with its still untold possibilities is magnificent!"

"Another source of Christianity is the church. This institution is far from a perfect manifestation of the life it purports to teach. Like the humanity of which it is composed, the church has many frailties, many weaknesses, many imperfections. Yet, suffice it to say, the church is the only institution that majors on keeping alive an ever growing sense of the presence of God. History records that whenever the knowledge of God is meager, and faith in Him is on the wane, their civilization is stagnant. "In addition the church is multifariously related to every human betterment movement that is working anywhere on the planet. Much of our institutional life is a direct product of the activity of the church; and most of the rest of our organized movements are a by-product of its teaching and vision.

"The natural reason, that builds the world's theistic philosophies, is another source of Christianity. Somewhere it is written 'Prove all things.' This is the function of reason. Faith must ever run in advance of reason. It is the far-seeing scout of life. But the contribution of faith is valid only as it will stand the test in the crucible of reason. Reason applies the acid test. Only those things should be held fast, which can stand this test. Faith must ever transcend reason, run leagues ahead of it, but as reason follows along, the articles of faith must stand or fall at its behest."

"Then there is the source of experience. Christianity is not a cunningly devised fable. It is not a fine spun theory. Christianity is a way of life. He who wills to do shall know. Strange as it may seem, clear intellectual perceptions, while a great aid, are not an absolute prerequisite, to valid experience. Some of the greatest saints have been those who could lay no claim to being mighty philosophers. They blazed their trail along the humble pathway by kindly deeds and sympathetic acts and loving attitudes. Had it been their to possess the intellectual insight of the seers, they could have made greater progress. Likewise some of those of broader outlook could have stood a more rewarding life, had they been possessed of these so-called lesser virtues. Experience is the court of last resort. Experience is built up out of the reactions of life to specific situations that it must face."

"It is comparatively easy to think God after some abstract fashion and hold the idea as a precious concept. There is more life upsetting in experiencing God. The fellowship, which means give as well as take, presents the urge. One has no great difficulty in gaining some conception of man, either as an individual or as a group. But when one is confronted with the task of experiencing men, of seeing life from their windows, of sharing their lives from either the standpoint of climbing to their level, or raising them to yours, a new challenge is presented."

"Salvation, full and complete, means the sharing of God's life, that it may be shared with the man next to us, or the one farthest away. It is finding the enlarging life of God at work within us, as well as discovering that

EVANS IS NEW ORGANIST FOR LOCAL CHURCH

Dale Hamilton Evans began his work as organist and choir director at the Episcopal church of the Messiah yesterday. Evans, who is regarded as one of the leading organists of the city, came to the Episcopal church from the First Baptist church, where he has presided at the console, presenting many recitals and adding beauty to the church service, with his technique.

He has held similar positions at the Anaheim Presbyterian church, where he also was choir director and had charge of a mixed chorus of 60 voices. Before coming to California he was organist at many large churches in the east.

The new organist-director of the Church of the Messiah has planned some especially beautiful vocal and instrumental music for the Christmas Eve midnight service, which is always an outstanding feature of the church.

Music at the service yesterday included Handel's "Largo" as the prelude, "Bread of Heaven" by Pease as the anthem, and Bartok's "Antiphon" as the postlude for the morning service. At the evening service the prelude was "Meditation in D Flat" by St. Clair and the postlude was "March in D" by Mourlan.

The Rev. J. W. Hatter is rector of the church where Evans began his work yesterday.

Eloquent of the Christmas season and its brilliancy were two parties of the past week given in compliment to Miss Isabelle Northcross, daughter of Mrs. Bella Northcross of Garden Grove, whose marriage to Edwin Ford of this city promises to be an outstanding event of the holidays.

Wedding Date Told
The most recent of these took place Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt A. Ford entertained in their home at 410 Acacia street, Garden Grove. Bridge was played and when scores were added it was found that Mrs. Eugene Thomas of Irvine and Charles Lake of Garden Grove, held high scores, Mrs. B. A. Lieberman of this city and Kenneth Roepke of Van Nuys second high, and Mrs. Kenneth Roepke, low. Each received an appropriate gift attractively wrapped in Christmas paper. At the same time Miss Northcross was presented with a handsome waffle iron on behalf of the assembled guests.

It was during the refreshment hour that the date of the wedding of Miss Northcross and Mr. Ford was revealed as December 25, for concealed under the candle holders which centered each table, and attached to red ribbons tied with holiness were tiny cards relating the interesting news. Salad, sandwiches, and individual cakes added their notes of cheer to the pretty scene.

Mrs. Charles Lake assisted Mrs. Ford in serving.

Those sharing the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Ford, other than Miss Northcross and Mr. Ford were Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Lieberman and Mr. and Mrs. E. Cantley of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thomas of Irvine, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Roepke of Van Nuys and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake.

In Merrick Home
Another charming party for Miss Northcross was that of Friday evening when Mrs. Mildred Reinhardt, Mrs. George Menges and Mrs. Ronald Merrick, all of whom are associates of the honoree in the commercial department of the Telephone company, entertained in the Merrick home at 808 North Olive street.

Guests arrived dressed in clever costumes such as they might have worn when they were children. Several childhood games preceded the evening of bridge, and when scores were added for the latter diversion Miss Gertrude Wyman and Miss Esther Wright were awarded first and second prizes.

What Miss Northcross supposed was to be a Christmas gift exchange followed, but was in reality a shower of lovely green kitchen utensils. A perfect setting for the affair was found in the poinsettias, cotoneaster and sprays of mistletoe which decorated the rooms, and added to the effect of the prettily arranged Christmas tree.

The arrival of Santa Claus climaxed the interesting evening, and his mission was to present the honoree with a bag full of linens, glassware, towels, and other articles. An appetizing refreshment course followed, and was served at tables each centered with a tiny tree bearing gifts for the guests. Red nut cups added to the effective holiday theme.

Those present, other than the honoree, Miss Northcross, were the Misses Esther Wright, Rosella Sohr, Murrell Regan, Martha Liverson, Gertrude Wyman, Anna Phillips, Mrs. Elsie Harrin and the three hostesses, Mrs. Menges, Mrs. Merrick and Mrs. Reinhardt.

Ewing-McAlpin Wedding Occurred in Yuma Saturday

Miss Stevens, as Miss Ewing's maid of honor, and Mr. Breckenridge as best man for Mr. McAlpin.

Rebekahs

Twenty-eight Veteran Rebekahs were present Friday afternoon when Miss Ella Camp was hostess in her home at 115 Orange avenue, and the last meeting of the year was held.

Members enjoyed their Christmas gift exchange which took place at an early hour amidst the cheery setting provided by brilliant holly berries and flowers. Late in the afternoon Miss Camp served an appetizing refreshment course.

LUNCHEON GUESTS ALLOWED TO SEE SCULPTOR'S WORK

Opportunity to see some of the later work of Ada May Sharpless (Mrs. Jean Liliano), was the enjoyable experience Saturday of a little group of Santa Ana friends of that talented young sculptress whose name bids fair to be placed among the very foremost of California artists. For Mrs. Liliano entertained very informally at luncheon on Saturday, in her delightful little studio home on New Hampshire boulevard in Los Angeles, later accompanying them to the Los Angeles Museum, where two examples of her work have been given prominent place in the current exhibit of the California Art Club.

Probably no Southland artist, and certainly no Santa Ana artist, has ever made more rapid strides in a chosen life work than has Ada May Sharpless, and those friends who were so fortunate as to be included in the little party, and who were familiar with the earlier expressions of her talent while she was yet a student in the local high school and in Los Angeles art schools and studios, were able to appreciate her progress as evidenced in the work now on exhibit. Her years in Paris in studios and ateliers of sculptors famous on the continent, have enriched her powers, and the work she is now doing, shows a command of the difficult medium of clay that seems phenomenal in one so young.

Critic's Judgment
In the art club exhibit in Los Angeles museum, she is represented by two entries, a portrait bust of almost Grecian simplicity, and a second piece of which Arthur Miller, critic on a Los Angeles morning paper, declared "The sculpture section turned up one really fine piece of work, the torso of a woman by Ada May Sharpless, which is easily the star piece of the show."

"It rises in our estimation, far above the balance of the exhibits. Study the contours, the exquisite movement of the trunk on the hips creating moving lines both before and behind, in which truth meets beauty. You can call it real, or classic, or the seizure of a fleeting impression of movement. Call it what you like, this piece of work will outlast the label. It is art that indicates real feeling and a cultivated mind."

Friends of Mrs. Liliano will recall that she took first prize in the fall exhibit of the Art club after her return from Paris in 1929, with the portrait bust of her father. This recognition followed special honors won in Paris, where she was the only new exhibitor to have her work accepted in the Salon de Independents, where it won flattering attention from the critics.

In Friendly Home
Those to whom the pleasant hospitality of their home was extended by Mr. and Mrs. Liliano, included in addition to the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sharpless of Greenwood Gables on Newport road, Mrs. Victor Montgomery, Mrs. Everett T. Mateer, Mrs. John A. Tessmann, Mrs. Harry Matthews (Ollman Enlow Matthews), Mrs. E. M. Nealey, Mrs. Emmett Elliott, Mrs. Clarence Gustlin and Mrs. C. E. Utt of this city, and Mrs. Barker, an artist friend of Santa Monica.

They found the studio a charming setting for the hospitality and especially enjoyed the many examples of Mrs. Liliano's work which included a garden piece now under way, as well as a number of completed pieces. Among the latter, they were especially interested in the portrait bust of her father, B. H. Sharpless, which has now been cast in bronze and mounted on its black onyx base. Most of them had seen the portrait while it was yet in its clay form, for it had been completed while Mr. and Mrs. Sharpless visited their son-in-law and daughter in Paris after reaching the continent from their trip around the world some two years ago.

An especially interesting and powerful study was of a Zulu woman, instinct with life and a certain stateliness and beauty compounded of a royal carriage, and an effect of fluid muscles rippling under ebony flesh.

It is in portraiture, however, that Mrs. Liliano takes special joy, and her plans are to specialize in that phase of her art.

Auxiliary Card Party Comes Tomorrow Night

In making their last-minute plans for the big annual benefit card party of tomorrow night in Legion hall, members of the Legion auxiliary today pointed out that while reservations have been asked for large parties, they are holding a certain number of tables for emergency needs arising at the door tomorrow night.

Mrs. Willard Swarthout and her committee have been spending many weeks in preparation for this annual party by means of which the auxiliary carries out its Yuletide plans for World war veterans, especially those lacking compensation. Prizes are said to be unusually lovely, and all decorative details have been planned on a more lavish scale than ever before. The committee members have spent many hours making the tally cards and score pads, which are highly original. The refreshments to be served as the evening draws to a close, will be home-prepared also.

Inter-se Club Members Share Yuletide Joys With Husbands

Sharing the joys of their Christmas party with their husbands, members of the Inter-Se club joined in an unusually delightful party Friday night, when they assembled in the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle F. Morris, at 2127 North Ross street, with Mrs. Fred Nelson and Mrs. Morris as hostesses.

Flaming red carnations, quantities of holly and Christmas ribbons enhanced the charm of the home and conveyed the Yuletide message of cheer and gaiety. The early evening hours were devoted to bridge, with desirable prizes for high and second high scores, awarded Mr. and Mrs. William Hutton and Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCarter, while Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin were consoled.

Fruit salad, cake and coffee were served at the small tables, spread with dainty linens and centered with candles. Following the supper hour, guests were handed slips of paper bearing their individual names, and asked to unwind the mystic maze of ribbon attached to each card, to find the gift at the very end. The hunt occasioned much merriment, but no more than the gifts, which were mostly very noisy little musical instruments which Inter-Se members had provided for their husbands. The packages for the members themselves contained the club's exchange gifts.

Those enjoying the annual Christmas party with Mr. and Mrs. Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, included Messrs. Frank McCarter, Fred Martin, A. B. Chandler, James Smith, Floyd Spencer, Charles Aubrey, Charles Mitchell, Alvin Nozwoy and Frank Cannon.

Constance Bennett Here In "Sin Takes A Holiday"

NEWEST PATHE FEATURE OPENS AT FOX-BD'WAY

In her latest dialogue triumph, "Sin Takes A Holiday," Constance Bennett, the distinguished Pathe star, demonstrates again in her inimitable fashion that women have this in common with the Northwest Mounted police—they always get their man. The picture comes to the Fox Broadway theater for four days opening today.

In the role of secretary to a phillandering millionaire, Miss Bennett is said to voice the epigrammatic dialogue with characteristic charm and to carry the role with a sophistry that is peculiarly her own. She has the clever support of Kenneth MacKenna, Basil Rathbone and Rita La Roy. The picture was directed by Paul Stein. "Sin Takes A Holiday," from its title to the fadeout, is characteristically a Constance Bennett story and according to reviewers, the picture lifts this brilliant star into the heights of her most notable achievement.

VAUDEVILLE AT WEST COAST ON FRIDAYS NOW

Announcement was made today by Norman Sprowl, Fox Theater manager here, that beginning Friday night and continuing each Friday night in the future, vaudeville will be shown at the Fox West Coast theater.

This is not the same vaudeville that will be brought to the playhouse on Saturdays and Sundays as has been the custom for the past several months, but new acts. At the same time, it was announced from the stage of the theater yesterday, all the acts would be professional, not amateur.

"There are a number of old time acts always being rejuvenated and it is these acts that will be brought to Santa Ana. With the aid of Neil Abel, our new master of ceremony at the theater, and the best, I think, we have ever had, I am going to handpick these acts, because I realize that Santa Ana patrons of our Fox theaters want the best, and I believe I can get the best for them," Sprowl said in a statement made today.

The new vaudeville program calls for a show each Friday night at 8:30 o'clock, in addition to the regular all-talking feature showing at that time. The new routine will be shown just the one time and the regular Saturday and Sunday vaudeville programs will go on just the same.

Fanchon and Marco and West Coast officials are to be in the city each Friday for the purpose of reviewing the new routines. "These vaudeville shows, something new in Santa Ana to be shown at 8:30 o'clock each Friday night will be previews of professional talent, breaking in and trying out new routines and acts," Sprowl said.

The full orchestra will be in the pit for the Friday vaudeville programs as usual, Sprowl announced.

LA HABRA

Rosalie Phillips is ill with tonsillitis.

Plans were made yesterday for the annual good will Christmas dinner to be held at the social hall of the Methodist church the evening of December 12, by members of the Ladies' Aid in an all day meeting held at the hall.

Following the meeting of the Aid society, a pot-luck dinner was served at noon and a Christmas sale was put on by the Home Missionary society for the benefit of the hospital fund.

The afternoon was devoted to meetings for both the Home and Foreign Missionary societies and plans were made for holding separate meetings of the foreign society instead of a combined meeting. Hereafter the members will meet on the second Wednesday afternoon of the month at the home of members.

Mrs. Sheridan Phillips led the devotionals in the Home society and also gave a report of the Missionary meeting held in Fullerton Wednesday.

Mrs. H. A. Randall presided at the meeting and gave a report of Mrs. Snudden's recent trip to Springfield, Mass., to a national missionary meeting.

For The Day After Christmas

By the time this reaches print Christmas day will be just around the corner. I am not going to talk about what to eat for Christmas dinner, but about using up the left-overs the next day, and the next day. On Christmas day take father into the kitchen and instruct him, on pain of sudden death, not to serve the drumsticks.

Next day bone these, fill with some of the turkey dressing, sew up, dip in egg and crumbs and brown in butter, transfer to a baking dish and heat thoroughly in a medium oven. Of course, if there are several in the family, two drumsticks will not be enough, so during the warming process arrange what scraps of dark meat can be saved around the drumsticks, and serve with some of the turkey gravy.

To serve with these "little turkeys" baked apples filled with cranberry jelly would be just the right touch. These are prepared this way:

Cut a slice off the stem-end of each apple, nip out the blossom end and with a spoon scoop out the core to leave a good sized cup. Make a syrup out of 1 cup of sugar, 1/4 cup water, a few drops of carmine coloring, and the juice of a lemon. While this is cooking drop in the apples and parboil to color and to hasten cooking. Put the apples in a baking dish pour the syrup over them and bake until tender. A few minutes before taking from the oven fill the cups with cranberry jelly and leave just long enough to heat—about 10 minutes will do. Serve one apple on each plate.

Save every last smidge of turkey, dressing and gravy, to use as the base of a delicious soup for another dinner. And with this soup serve plenty of home-made noodles, a good salad and dessert, and any reasonable family, will say they have had a good dinner.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Hard Sauce

5/2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla or Sherry flavoring to taste.

Put the butter into a bowl rinsed with hot water. Blend with a silver fork to mix and soften. When the butter is pliable start adding the sifted powdered sugar, a little at a time, with much cutting and beating. When all the sugar is in continue the beating until the sauce is a fluffy, velvety mass. Add the flavoring, pack into a small bowl and chill thoroughly. At serving time, dip the bowl into boiling water for a moment and unmould. Cut down in thin slices and serve one slice on each portion of pudding, the hot sauce poured around the pudding.

A tablespoonful of this sauce has energy calories totalling 175.

If you prefer a softer sauce try this one.

RASPBERRY CREAM SAUCE
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon peach extract
1/2 cup raspberry juice
1 cup whipping cream
Tiny pinch of salt

Have all ingredients icy-cold and just before time to serve the pudding beat the egg whites as stiff as possible, add the sifted powdered sugar and beat again. Next beat the cream very stiff. To the beaten egg whites add the canned raspberry juice (good tart currant or grape jelly will do) the peach extract, whip briskly and combine with the whipped cream. Serve generously over the pudding portions.

Try adding 2 scant teaspoonfuls of soft gelatine to the egg whites (recipe above), combine as directed and freeze for the requisite length of time to make a delectable dessert.

The current leaflet, BLUE MONDAY DINNERS, is available free of charge this week on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ham Souffle will be the recipe for tomorrow's lesson. This is a fine way to make a little go a long way.

ANN MEREDITH.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY NAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY "NICK"
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Another speed boat whizzed right by and Scouty said, "Oh, gee, let's have a race with that fine boat. I hope that we can win. Please hurry, Mister Travel man, and catch up to it, if you can." The craft's exhaust was open and it made an awful din.

The other boat slowed down a bit and Clowny cried, "Twould make a bit with all of us if you will race. We'll have a heap of fun. We'll start together, right in line." The other man yelled, "Sure! That's fine. Pull up now, right beside me, lads and then I'll shoot my gun."

The boats lined up and then "ker-bang!" A loud shot in the clear air rang. Off went the two fine speed boats, throwing water in the air. To all the bunch it was a thrill. "Oh, gee, I hope that we don't spill," cried Carpy. "How these tiny boats, with full power on, can tear!"

They had agreed to circle 'round a little buoy, which was found a-bobbing in the water. With the engines both a-hum, the two boats shortly made the turn, with water swishing at the stern. And then they speeded toward the spot that they had started from.

The next thing that the Tini-mites knew, and just before the race was through, their boat slipped up in the lead. The bunch began to grin. Across the finish spot they skimmed. The other man knew he was trimmed. He shouted to the Tini-mites, "Hurray for you! You win!" Soon afterwards the Travel Man, with all the happy Tini-mites, ran along the shore and spied a truck. The Travel Man cried, "Hey! I think I have a plan you'll like. Across the country we will hike. Hop in the truck real quickly now, and we'll be on our way."

(The Tini-mites start a long journey in the next story.)

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't. TEE, TIE, PIE, PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

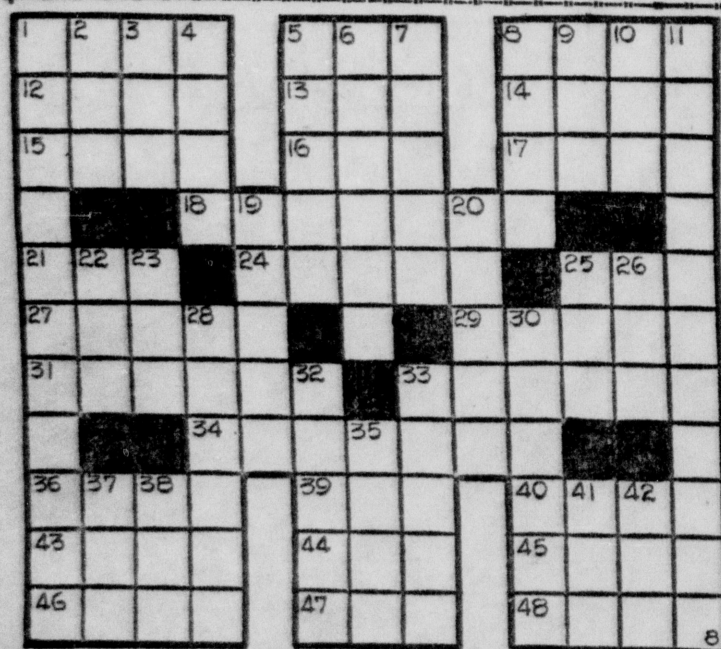

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

LUCK to LESS—Do not consider yourself LUCKLESS if you fail to shoot par four on this hole. The fact is you'll be rather lucky.

FINDING PEARL IN LIVES TOPIC OF DR. TIPPLE

VILLA PARK, Dec. 8.—"Finding a Pearl in Our Lives" was the topic of the sermon delivered at the Community church here yesterday morning by the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. M. Tipple.

The pastor took for his text the scripture reading from Matthew 13:45, 46, "The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a merchant man, seeking goodly pearls: who when he had found one pearl of great price, sold all that he had and bought it."

"The pastor said: 'In conversation with a woman the other day, she was lamenting the fact that life was not worth living. One cannot but feel sorry for such an idea that is put forth. Why should there be such a thought, or why should such thoughts be expressed? And this woman, as I happen to know, is not alone in the world, but is surrounded by her family, and as far as I know, her family is extremely good to her. She is not physically as strong as she might be, and finally she said, 'Oh, well, what is it all about anyway?' I wondered why anyone should make such a statement."

Must Have Objective

"This woman is supposed to be a Christian woman, and, I wondered if by chance there wasn't something wrong with her manner of living. I came to the conclusion that she had no high objective in life. She was not seeking a pearl of great price. With some there is a singleness of aim which is the out-tanding feature—they eliminate all else to gain that one aim. Perhaps this is the explanation of all lives that we admire the most.

"Living is not all play, living is too much trouble unless we can get something out of it. The struggle for food, the struggle for shelter, the struggle for clothing, occupies the time and energy of most people. The simple, humdrum task of washing dishes, and the same old way of washing them, and the fields that must be plowed—most of us never realize it all. Do we ever think of the work we ourselves cause others to do? We cause the dishes to be washed, and the beds to be made, and the clothes to be mended, then the roads over which we travel must be repaired. The fields are to be plowed, and sown and harvested. The trouble of mere existence is great, the problem of living is difficult. How shall we solve it? There are some poor, unfortunate creatures who solve it by putting an end to life, but that is not a satisfactory way to solve these problems.

Find Something To Do

"I believe the solution is to find some real, big thing to do; not to be president of the United States, or a senator, or even mayor of our city. Some merely lead an existence, others really live. An aim should be high to be worth the sacrifice. Most people will respond when they find something big enough.

"How are we to find this great pearl? How can we learn to get something big out of life? First, we must know what the pearl is, for which we are seeking. Is there anything you care so much about that you will sacrifice all else for it? Often the good is the enemy of the best. Most of the choices any of us have to make are between a variety of good.

Any May Have Pearl

There is a difference between the pearl of the parable and the pearl of life. There was only one pearl for one man. But there are many of us and many pearls. The pearl in life may be owned by as many as are willing to pay the price.

"As we look back through history, Washington, Lincoln, Wilson, Livingston, Carey and others sought a pearl of great price, found it and paid the price. It is not the value of a man's possessions or surroundings that make a man great, but the breadth of his aspirations and ambitions."

FOLLOW JESUS. PASTOR URGES IN EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Dec. 8.—In a sermon delivered at the El Modena Friends church yesterday the Rev. Joseph Rance, pastor of the church read as a scripture lesson, Luke 9:18-28, taking as a text several of these verses.

He said in part: "I wish to call your attention to three thoughts. Verses 17, 18 and part of 19 of the gospel of Luke have to do with the testimony of Christ. A great many people have ideas in regard to Washington and Napoleon Bonaparte. It makes no difference what we think about these men, but we can't see Jesus Christ as a great man, as many people do, we can't see Jesus Christ as a great teacher as many people do; we can't compare Him to Julius Caesar or to George Washington. A great deal depends on what we think of Him. People like to think of Him as a great law-giver, and as a great teacher.

Want To Go Our Way

"People want to go their own way and not follow His way. One man was keen enough and was willing to come out and say, 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.' Today we hear a great deal about Peter, while others are forgotten. That is one of the cornerstones of the church, that Christ is the Son of God, if He is the Son of God, then our lives must be changed.

"Another thought: Jesus says, 'The Son of man must suffer many things and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day.' He tells what is going to take place. Christ is going to be rejected. He is even going to be killed, but He is going to be raised again on the third day. Out of the mist and darkness the King of Kings, the Man who came out of many prophecies of the Old Testament, this same King, instead of being what they expected, must be slain.

Make Our Path

"In the 23rd verse—And He said to them all, 'If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.' It suggests the possibility that we can choose. We can call Him Elias or John the Baptist, or any other name that these people called Him. We may have to make our own path. He has faced every problem, He has passed every test. 'When I was a small boy in North Carolina, and the deep snows came, my father used to break the way to the barn, to feed the stock, and I went after him in his footsteps. Jesus has made it possible for us to follow Him, by overcoming every difficulty. We are to follow after Him, for He has set the way. If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, not anybody else, or renounce himself—and take up his cross. Some people seem to think that to take up one's cross is to be willing to testify for Jesus at all times, but if we loved God as

"TICKLETOES" is the only doll in the world with soft, life-like rubber legs and rubber arms, and those marvelous rolling-sleeping-winking eyes. Squeeze either leg and hear this baby cry, or turn her over and she cries.

She is the cutest and happiest of all baby dolls, for she can clasp her hands, turn her head, suck her thumb, enjoy her pacifier. She is elegantly dressed in baby clothes and wears stockings, moccasins and real rubber panties.

Just picture the joy of the children proudly "mothering" cute little "Tickletoes." Even grown-ups like to play with this "almost-human" doll.

DISSENTING OPINION IN THE BILL-
ING'S CASE

Elsewhere in the paper today there appears the dissenting opinion of Justice Langdon of the state supreme court which last week declined to recommend pardon for Warren K. Billings.

Stronger criticism of the decision of the supreme court than Justice Langdon writes in the beginning of his report could hardly be compiled. "Considered," he says, "either as an argument of an advocate or as a judicial review of the evidence, the consolidated majority report is unsound and indefensible. It is unsound because its conclusions are not founded upon established facts.

"Suspicious, conjectures, unwarranted inferences, irreconcilable inconsistencies and admitted perjuries are treated as facts. It is indefensible because it appeals to passion and prejudice."

Following that statement, Chief Justice Langdon cites those things which support his opinion.

Having read all the available evidence as it has appeared during the various appeals of Billings and Mooney, we are in hearty accord with Justice Langdon.

To deprive a man of freedom a state should have evidence of undoubted accuracy and truth against him. It will take very little time to read the opinion of Justice Langdon, and it should strengthen the passion for justice, which is one of the emotions we ought to feel.

The reactions of the rest of the country to this decision have begun to come in. California is not building up a good reputation for itself through this case. After the decision of the pardon board some months ago, scorn and reproaches were heaped upon the officials responsible for that decision. California is famed for its beauty, for the grandeur of its mountains and valleys, the pleasures of the coast, the sunshine. All these things are fine, but one of the prime considerations of those who are looking for a place to live, unless they seek isolation, is the relations of society.

Such questions are asked: Is justice treasured and safeguarded and precious to the people of that state? Is the liberty fostered there the kind that permits the greatest amount of liberty to every member of society, or is the activity of some of the people curtailed because others exercise so much personal liberty that they interfere with the liberty of others? Human relationships figure importantly in the consideration of those looking into our state.

Someone suggests that Clara Bow is popular enough to have a five-cent cigar named after her. Sounds like a puff from her publicity agent.

JUDGE LINDSEY IN CHURCH

Judge Ben B. Lindsey in a spectacular manner yesterday, in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, demanded a hearing from Bishop William T. Manning and charged him with false representation. Specifically he said: He lied about me. He had no right to lie about me.

The affair was most dramatic. One can picture the fashionable church, the conservative worshippers in costly and impeccable attire, and those who had been attracted there by predictions that Judge Lindsey would challenge the bishop in the morning service. Thoughtful people, however, had discredited these predictions because it seemed unlikely that Judge Lindsey would use such means of replying to Bishop Manning's attacks on him. But Judge Lindsey did the spectacular. His viewpoints on marriage are not the sort of thing to be accepted by ordered society in a few years, if at all. Such a catastrophic change in an institution which is the very bulwark of life requires a deal of thinking over, not fighting over. It was unfair of Bishop Manning to read a newspaper clipping quoting the opinion of Chief Justice Greely W. Whitford of Colorado in the disbarment of Lindsey. The bar association of California cleared Judge Lindsey of any shadow of misconduct. For years and years, in Colorado, those who were opposed to his juvenile court work have been opposing him and trying to "oust" him.

Judge Lindsey's action yesterday, however, revealed a lack of faith in ordered procedure, in the reactions of folks, in their ultimate conclusions. Possibly Judge Lindsey believes that his views are furthered by such publicity as he attracted yesterday. There is the point at which those who respect Judge Lindsey's conclusions and his work would for the most part disagree with him, and apparently that is his opinion. There are many who respect his conclusions, because it is believed that they are founded upon actual contacts which he has made, without being willing to accept his conclusions. "Companionate marriage" Judge Lindsey maintains is not a theory. It is an actual fact. In order to protect children and the home for them and to discourage promiscuity, society must recognize its existence and establish rules.

When Judge Lindsey tells people that such and such a thing is a fact they accept it as truth or reject it; their acceptance or rejection of his statement depends somewhat upon their faith in him. Faith depends upon a man's confidence in his cause and his firm belief that because it is right it will triumph in the end, his willingness because of that confidence, to be patient. Judge Lindsey's action yesterday was a great mistake. It revealed a lack of faith in the ultimate conquest of right opinion over wrong opinion, it was a mistake any way one looks at it. It was not becoming conduct. It accomplished nothing. It alienated people whose support was courted by Judge Lindsey.

Lots of people lost money on the stock market, says the office sage, because they used too much imagination.

FUTURE CAREERS FOR CO-EDS

In answer to a questionnaire sent to the co-eds of the University of Kansas, we learn that only 7 out of 1705 picked out home-making as a future career. Eighty-four picked out journalism, 80 are training to be nurses, 60 look forward to a business career, 16 plan to be doctors, and 15 expect to be lawyers. Perhaps the 123 who expressed no choice had had their eye upon some young man who might make a home for them in the future, which after all is a very normal and commendable expectancy.

Yet one cannot overlook the fact that the status of women has changed very much since the higher education for women has come in. Modern life no longer demands that a woman shall be married to fulfil a career. Education has liberated women from the compulsory choice of one vocation only. Whether for good or ill is a matter of different opinion, according as one looks backward or forward. But the trend is unmistakable. For self-sufficient women, economic dependence is of the past. Just what effect that is to have upon the home and its far reaching influence is a matter of doubt and conjecture. But we are not despondent. We do not believe that the elemental desires of womanhood are to pass out. The family and the child will continue in spite of all the encroachments of economic aspirations and the pressure of the individual spirit in modern womanhood.

Statesmen Lured By Capital

San Francisco Chronicle
Seventy-eight members of the lower House of Congress will go out of office on and after next fourth of March. To the ordinary citizen this means little. But to the men who have served together in the national legislature for varying terms it means a great deal sentimentally, thus to separate and to sever the ties of friendship and comradeship which they have enjoyed with their fellow members.

The total membership of the House is 435. Bring together this number of men from every state in the Union and from every part of every state, and many congenial spirits will be found, many warm friendships will be made, many members will become boon companions of other members.

After all, members of Congress are human—although some critics seem to assume that they are sub-human. He would be a daring soul who would call any Congressman a super-human or a super-man. Estimates of critics, however, are subject to very liberal discounting. Members of the United States Congress compare favorably, in character and ability, with the members of any other legislative body in the world.

Washington is an alluring capital—noted all over the world for its allurements. Men who go up to the capital from the provinces soon feel the spell of easy-going, near-romantic life in Washington; it is so different from life in any other city in the country. Small wonder, then, that men who have served a number of years in House or Senate are reluctant to break the spell of friendships and delightful associations in the nation's capital.

Belligerent Grizzly Would Not Be Saved

San Francisco Chronicle
Biologists are making a plea to save what are left of the grizzlies. The grizzlies are a hard case. They went quickly because they refused to be saved. Accustomed to thumbing their noses at the Indians they found out too late that the white man's gun was a different matter. The little black bear ran away and lived to run another day, but the grizzly stayed to fight and so he disappeared.

In California, for example, where the Indians were not very assertive, the grizzly was uncommonly cocky. The Spaniards and Mexicans, who were not hunters, made little impression on him. Once in a while they roped one and made him fight a bull. Grizzlies were everywhere when the Americans flocked into the state in forty-nine but not for long. The big buffalo guns that came in from the great plains made short work of the belligerent bear.

Grizzlies were supposed to be extinct in California soon after 1900. Yet a grizzly, full identified as such, was killed only five years ago at Horse Corral Meadow in Tulare county and it may barely be possible that others still linger in remote fastnesses of the Southern Sierra. If there are any they are wiser about guns than their ancestors of eighty years ago.

Not many grizzlies will be saved, except in parks and in Alaska, where the great bear has now learned the lesson that discretion is the better part of valor.

Traffic Menacing More Than War

Pasadena Star-News
Let there be no belittlement, or disparagement, or discouraging of the splendid work devoted men and women are giving to the promotion of peace throughout the world, and to the prevention of war. This is a great and good work, and the world needs it. Leave them to their work, with your benediction and your moral support.

But while the promoters of peace are striving to foster peace and to obviate warfare, turn to that nearer problem—that even more ghastly menace than war itself—the deadliness of traffic. Wars come infrequently. But death rides in traffic every day—every hour of the day. Traffic tragedies go on perpetually. There is no surcease to them. Over the history of traffic in this country for each recurring day hangs the pall of tragedy.

Tens of thousands are killed annually in traffic accidents. Hundreds of thousands are maimed. Multiply the distressing record of each year by the many years, and the horrorfulness of this menace is apparent. So, while the peace promoters work for peace to avert the ravage of war, let those who are of humane instincts and to whom the menace of traffic appeals strongly—let them go out into the highways and by-ways and say and do all possible to lessen this dreadful peril in traffic.

SURRENDER

Dr. Einstein says that he doesn't know whether the hen or the egg came first.

I have long labored over a puzzle
Which I never could quite figure out.
The more I was fraught with rough, mind-racking thought
The more I was plunged into doubt.
I pondered and pondered the problem
Till I thought that my brain cells would burst.
But no sage of my day, I discover, could say
If the hen or the egg arrived first.

This mystery sorely perplexed me.
My head I would futilely scratch,
"If the hen led the way to this life," I would say,
"From what could she possibly hatch?"
And there still was another grave problem
My fast waning reason to plague:
If the hen wasn't here in Creation's first year
The question is WHAT laid the egg?"

And then I was told about Einstein
And the means he has found to explain
The things which take place in the regions of space
Which have heretofore baffled the brain.
So I read all the works he has written
In the hope that therein there might be
Some passages found which perhaps might expound
The hen-or-egg mix-up to me.

But the Doctor now calmly announces
That no one will ever succeed,
In the world's whole career, to make perfectly clear,
If the egg or the hen had the lead.
And if HE cannot dig up an answer
The problem I'll lay on the shelf,
No more I shall grope through illusions of hope
For I cannot work it out by myself.

"Too Much Government Action"

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Calvin Coolidge says, "We have had too much Government action, with attendant publicity, proposing to cure human illness, which no government can cure."

It is true that we had too much Government action, last year, for the purpose of reducing the bank credit in circulation. But we have had too little Government action, this year, for the purpose of bringing the credit back.

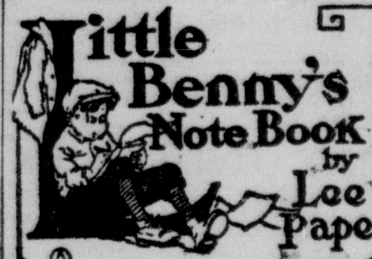

Two years ago, the people were told that the Government would substantially increase expenditures for public works, as soon as a business depression began. That would put money back into circulation. But the Government did no such thing. Federal Expenditures on public works in the year of depression, ending June 30, 1930, were almost exactly the same as in the year of prosperity, ending June 30, 1929. That was too little Government action.

Instead of using surplus funds as payrolls on public works, the Government used these funds to pay off debts. The amount so employed in the year of dejection, 1930, was actually 72 million dollars IN EXCESS of the amount so employed in the year of prosperity, 1929. That is unsound public policy. When the nation is in the throes of an unemployment crisis, surplus funds should be used to create jobs. We not only had too little Government action of that kind: we had no action at all.

Again, long before the crash in the stock market, a bill was introduced which provided for long-range planning of public works, and for increased expenditures in a period of suffering like the present. Congress merely talked about that bill for months and months. And every month the volume of money circulating in pay envelopes declined, while the volume of jobless men circulating among employment agencies increased. That again was too little Government action.

The Government has not yet done its part toward putting back into circulation the money which it drove out of circulation.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE NEW TOWN MEETING

With the tangled social and economic issues that lie ahead, informed followers will be as important as inspiring leaders.

I find myself looking wistfully back at the New England Town Meeting and at a still earlier common meeting ground of the Athenian democracy.

We are scattering more information about than ever reached the Athenian of the fifth century or the New Englander of the eighteenth century, but, for all that, we lack the device to bring all this information to focus upon our urgent issues.

I am more and more impressed with the social possibilities of a state controlled radio station over which the various and varied service agencies of the state could have prompt and comprehensive access to the minds of the whole citizenry.

Of some of the things that the service agencies of our states might do with state-wide, state-controlled radio facilities I shall speak another day.

Today I am interested only to point out the possibility of recreating via the radio the New England Town Meeting in this machine age.

We need the unhampered, intelligent and sustained discussion of public issues that marked the New England Town Meeting and such intellectual battles as the Lincoln-Douglas debates.

And a state-wide and state-controlled radio could provide a forum in which issues of public policy might be threshed out alike by the non-political scholars of the state's university and by the political leaders of the state.

With all the political groups in the state having equal access to the state radio's microphone, some contribution might also be made to the vexatious problem of campaign expenditures.

As I have pointed out so many times in these articles, the two evils against which democracy must forever fight are distance and complexity.

Democracy has never functioned effectively over vast areas, and it is always hard put when its social order grows complex.

Radio stations dedicated freely to public interests and public enterprise might go far towards conquering both of these anti-democratic devils of distance and complexity.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

AVOID THE OFFENSE

Children are naughty at times. They seem to choose the most inopportune times, if we have company, if we take them out, they misbehave. That is not their fault.

Children are easily fatigued. In the first place they have not the reserve energy that grownup people have. They use theirs as it comes and before they know what is happening the supply is exhausted and they are in distress. Naughtiness is usually the result of such fatigue.

Strange conditions tire children. They have to put out far more energy in a new situation than they would in a familiar one. It will not weary a child to visit the grandmother he sees every other day but it will exhaust him to go a short distance to see one he does not see more than once a year.

These things must be taken into consideration.

Changing a child's bedtime is a strong factor in this sort of trouble. The child's body is set for a certain space of time and when the time passes he lets down. He has to be changing a bodily habit fatigues a child. Any new situation calls for great exertion on his part and fatigues him greatly. The adult may be quite fresh and wonder what ails the child. What ails him is the difference in the reserve store of energy. The adult has much, the child, none.

Fatigue brings on all sorts of trouble. The child will be cross. He will fight and howl. Perhaps he will dance about and laugh loudly. In any case he will pay no attention to anything anybody says to him. He has lost control of himself. Nobody else has any at this time. The only thing to do is to lay hold of him, escort him to a quiet place, soothe him as well as one can, and get him to bed.

It is not wise, it certainly will not help, to spank a tired child. That will add to the trouble instead of lessening it because the excitement depletes his energy still further. Keep quiet. Soothe the child. Nothing else will help. The real help lies in avoiding the cause. Prevent the child from being over tired.

Stick to the child's schedule rather closely. Vary its monotony but hold to its hours. Try not to shift the hours of rising or retiring. Make mealtime a ritual. Do not take very young children on long trips, unless you are obliged to do so, as travel fatigues a child. Let his life run along as smoothly as possible and he will not have tantrums.

Consider the people who meet the children. Avoid those who tease, those who chide, those who ask questions that they dare not ask an adult. When people whose example is not good for children come to the house arrange to have the children cared for in another room. If the guests are temperamental, keep the children from them for nothing so disturbs a child as a fusey, uneven tempered person.

Have no fear of coddling the children. When you have done all you can to avoid stirring up their worst emotions there will still be enough cause for them to rear their ugly heads.
